AFTER THAT LETTER MAILED

Kelowna and Rutland Chambers of Commerce members gather around the stamping machine at the Gaston Avenue postal terminal as Matt

office Monday and discovered what happens to their mail after they drop it into the corner mailbox. More than 25,000 letters for local delivery and another 20,000 for out-of-town destinations are handled daily by the Kelowna post office.

BYELECTION HELD

Youth Causes No Ripples As Grits Capture Seat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The youth vote appeared to have little effect on the outcome of three federal byelections Monday as the Liberals improved their standing in the Commons by one seat.

Leopold Corrievau took the Quebec riding of Frontenac from the Creditistes for the Liberals while Maurice Dupras held Labelle for the Liberals and Jack Murta retained the Manitoba riding of Lisgar for the Progressive Conservatives.

The Liberals now have 154 Commons seats to 73 for the Conservatives, 23 for the NDP and 13 for the Creditistes. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux sits as independent member for Stormont-Dundas and brings the Commons total to 284 seats.

It was the first time 18- to 20-year-olds could vote federally and they boosted the number of eligible voters in each riding—15 per cent to 38,608 in Frontenac, 14 per cent to 47,000 in Labelle and seven per cent to 34,000 in Lisgar.

Despite this the total vote in all three ridings fell from returns in the 1968 general election.

In Frontenac the total vote fell to 23,531 from 26,902, in Labelle to 20,961 from 29,867 and in Lisgar to 19,516 from 23,497.

It is the first time the House has been full since Ed Schreyer resigned his NDP seat to lead the party to power in Manitoba in June, 1969.

The byelections also were significant in that they were fought on local issues, without reference to the critical situation that exists in Quebec since the kidnapping of James Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Observers in Ottawa anticipated the Lisgar and Labelle results, but thought the Creditistes might hold Frontenac, made vacant by the resignation of Bernard Dumont to run successfully in the last Quebec provincial election.

Mr. Dumont had won the seat with 12,298 votes compared with 9,863 for the Liberals, 3,510 for the Conservatives and 1,231 for the NDP.

LIBERAL WINS EASILY

But Monday Mr. Corrievau won handily with 13,595 votes compared with 7,687 for Creditiste candidate Michel Champagne and 2,249 for Conservative Victor Paul.

In Labelle, Mr. Dupras outdrew both his opponents together with 2,842 votes compared with 4,873 for Conservative Paul Gellinas and 3,446 for Creditiste Ouellette.

In 1968 former defence minister Leo Cadieux won the riding for the Liberals with 15,801 votes compared with 10,152 for the Conservatives, 2,215 for the Creditistes and 1,699 for the NDP.

The seat became vacant when Mr. Cadieux resigned to become Canadian ambassador in Paris. As in the two Quebec ridings, Mr. Murta won Lisgar by outdistancing all his rivals, combined.

WOMEN'S LIB THE OTHER WAY

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A woman has been ordered to pay her former husband $25 a week in child support.

Circuit Court Judge William G. Framling directed Monday that Mary Russell pay William Moes to help raise their four children who range in age from 7 to 16.

Mrs. Russell, 38, received a divorce in 1968 on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Moes was given custody of the children.

In his petition, Moes said he was laid off from his $115 a week job and was working as a bartender at $2 an hour. If his former wife contributed to the children's support, he said, he could spend less time working and give more time to the children.

Northern IWA Votes On Deal

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Settlement of the Northern Interior forest industry contract dispute appears closer.

Tentative agreement has been reached between Prince George Local 1-224 of the International Woodworkers of America and three companies employing more than 1,000 of the local's 3,000 members, the union announced Monday.

The IWA is not disclosing terms of the agreement until it is voted on. However, the union adds: "The proposed agreement includes the largest wage package in any IWA settlement in the province this year."

The IWA negotiating committee is recommending membership acceptance.

The tentative agreements have been reached with Northwood Pulp's sawmill and logging division, Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and Tubafour Stud Mills of Quebec.

An initial breakthrough came when Canadian Forest Products, a member of the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association, privately resumed negotiations with the IWA Saturday.

The association had been bargaining jointly for its 13 member companies until mediation efforts by Provincial Mediator Clive McKee broke off in Vancouver last Tuesday.

Christ 'Would Have Been Banned'

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A University of Windsor professor told St. Clair Beach Village Council Monday that if Jesus Christ "came back and asked to play hockey here" he'd get kicked off the team because his hair "would be considered too long."

Prof. John (Blake) Gertz, of the university's business administration department complained to council that the suburban St. Clair Beach Minor Hockey Association has been ordering young hockey players to cut their hair or face disciplinary action.

Police Study FLQ Note

MONTREAL (CP) — Police are investigating today the authenticity and contents of another note purported to be from the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The note, received Monday by French-language radio station CKAC, was immediately turned over to police. A CKAC spokesman declined comment on the contents of the note and said it was not broadcast by the station.

A police spokesman said that the note, signed by the Louis Riel cell, was being examined by technical experts. He did not divulge the contents.

Meanwhile, a provincial police statement said there was no negligence on the part of detectives during the raid in which Bernard Lortie was arrested at the west-end apartment almost two weeks ago.

Reports have claimed that when Lortie was captured three other men—Paul Rose, 27, his brother Jacques, 23, and Francis Simard, 23, hid in the closet.

ALL WANTED

Lortie, 19, Simard and Jacques Rose were all wanted for conspiracy in the kidnapping last Oct. 10 of former Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, whose body was found Oct. 17 in the trunk of an abandoned car in nearby St. Hubert.

Paul Rose, 27, and Marc Carboneau, 37, are being sought for the Laporte kidnapping and for the abduction Oct. 5 of British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross, thought to be still alive.

Director Maurice St. Pierre of the provincial police gave the first confirmation of the secret compartment Monday and added it had been occupied "by the individuals wanted in the Pierre Laporte affair."

He denied a claim made in a note, supposedly from the Viger cell of the FLQ and published in two Montreal papers Sunday, that the Rose brothers and Simard fled the west-end apartment after hiding in the closet for 24 hours. The note said they fled with guns police guards left behind when they went to eat.

Police are still trying to determine the authenticity of that note. "No firearm was left on the scene," Montreal policemen said. "If by provincial police technicians who went there to gather physical evidence," Mr. St. Pierre said.

Algeria Buys Canadian Grain

WINNIPEG (CP) — A sale involving a maximum of 37 million bushels of Canadian wheat has been made to Algeria, the Canadian wheat board announced today.

The board said in a news release that the sale, valued at about $70 million, is provided for in a four-year agreement negotiated by the board.

The agreement extends from Aug. 1, 1971, to July 31, 1975, although some shipments may be made before the end of the current crop year.

Terms of the sale call for payment of 10 per cent cash when each vessel is loaded with the balance payable in three years with interest.

It is the first time a long-term agreement has been signed with Algeria. Credit terms are made possible under a guarantee to the board by the federal government.

The agreement is for 850,000 to one million metric tons of wheat. Grades were not immediately announced.

Cholera Prowls Pakistani Coast In Storm's Wake

DACCA (CP) — Cholera spread today among hungry, homeless survivors of the cyclone and tidal waves that devastated heavily populated islands at the mouth of the Ganges River and stretches of the East Pakistani coast behind them.

Estimates of the total casualties were still only guesses, although some relief officials said Monday night that the count of the dead had reached 55,000. Information Secretary Syed Ahmed spoke of possibly "300,000 or 500,000" dead, adding that such numbers were not confirmed.

Cholera, a disease endemic to the area, was reported spreading on Hatia, one of the stricken islands in the Ganges delta cyclone alley. Three ships sent there with medical supplies were waiting for swift currents to subside so they could land their cargo.

Officials feared a widespread epidemic due to polluted water and the destruction of sanitation facilities.

B.C. Hospitals Normal Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pickets were removed from 16 British Columbia hospitals Monday after hospital association directors accepted terms of a new collective agreement.

The agreement, for 21 months until the end of 1971, provides about 100 members of the International Union of Operating Engineers with a $15-a-month salary increase retroactive to April 1, and $25 monthly next April 1. Details of the agreement were withheld pending formal signing, but it was believed to include a job evaluation program.

The engineers, who had been paid rates ranging from $500 to $780 monthly, also won a reduction of the work week to 37½ hours from 40, effective Dec. 1.

A health department spokesman said nearly one million doses of anti-cholera vaccine had been sent to the area with a large shipment of safe drinking water.

OUTLINES AREA

Relief Commissioner A. M. Anisuzzaman said the storm early Friday hit an area of 2,388 square miles in five districts with 2.2 million people. Casualty reports still were unobtainable from many areas because of ruined communications facilities, he said.

The commissioner himself put the official death toll at 32,771 with more than 2,000 known to be missing. But he admitted the survey was by no means complete.

The Pakistani press, working on figures from independent news sources, generally agree the death toll is in the vicinity of 300,000.

More than 235,000 houses were destroyed with half as many again damaged in the river-laced delta region torn apart four days ago, Anisuzzaman said.

Anisuzzaman, when asked about reports that the death toll was six to eight times higher than he had issued, stressed he could only relay the verified figures he had.

President Makes Tour

President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan and a group of reporters flew over the area for more than two hours Monday.

The rice crop, always insufficient for the area's dense population of 600 persons a square mile, was destroyed on Hatia, the neighboring island of Bhola and the mainland. The government estimated that 250,000 tons—two per cent of East Pakistan's annual harvest—was destroyed.

Bodies were buried in mass graves. Survivors wandered about on high ground. Brackish water stood in the rice fields, stained red by the blood of cattle flung about by the 150-mile winds and 20-foot waves characteristic of Bay of Bengal cyclones. Such storms are called hurricanes in the Atlantic and Caribbean and typhoons in the Pacific.

Some survivors were dragging the bloated carcasses of cattle to burial pits. A few human bodies lay in the rice paddies, still unexplored by the survivors because of the standing water.

On southern Bhola, a few homemade boats could be seen, little bigger than canoes, carrying people to a beach that had no vegetation. Live cattle stood in little clusters, awaiting the death that would come because they had no food.

Russia Claims Lunar 'First'

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet scientists said today a robot spaceship on the moon today and then sent an eight-wheel vehicle trundling over the lunar surface in a series of earth-controlled experiments.

Lunokhod I—the first vehicle on the moon—rolled down a special gangway from its mother ship early today two hours 41 minutes after Luna 17 slid down to a soft landing in the moon's Sea of Rains at 6:47 a.m. (10:47 p.m. EST Monday), the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Lunokhod—the name means moon vehicle—is carrying scientific apparatus, control gear, radio communications systems and television observation equipment to perform experiments monitored back on earth, Tass said.

"For the first time in the history of astronautics an automatic moon vehicle, controlled from earth, was taken to the moon and began scientific investigations," Tass said.

The moon truck crawled 65 feet away from its landing point in initial experiments, Tass added. The Lunokhod is controlled from a special communications centre in the Soviet Union, and scientists are using television cameras aboard the revolutionary vehicle for information on its position and the nature of the surrounding lunar escape.

Soviet science has entered an age of "effective new means of moon exploration with the help of automatic machines," Tass said as it gave word of the Russian space spectacular.

Tass also reported that both Lunokhod and the Luna spacecraft carried Soviet flags and pennants and bas-reliefs of Lenin.

All systems aboard Lunokhod were functioning normally, Tass added. The Russians had given no previous indication that anything as dramatic as the Lunokhod experiment had been planned for the Luna 17 moon mission.

North America Could Become 'An Island In A Metric Sea'

OTTAWA (CP) — North America could end up as an "island in a metric sea" if it does not convert to the metric system of weights and measures, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford told the Senate banking committee Tuesday.

Appearing before the committee as chief witness for a weights and measures bill, Mr. Basford said Japan has "gone metric" and when the United Kingdom converts to the system to be in line with other European countries, North America might be in the costly position of producing goods in one measurement system for domestic use and another for trade purposes.

"I think we should not be debating whether to convert but how to convert," he said. But Canada would have to move hand-in-hand with the United States in order to do this.

Gold Brick Trick Conned $5,500

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police say two artists fleeced a Vancouver man of $5,500 in a scheme involving 10 fake gold bars.

Police said Monday the 61-year-old man—whose name was not released—was approached by a fat man who claimed to be a gold miner. He told the victim he had been stealing gold and it had been melted into bars to be sold.

Another man posing as a New York businessman showed up and offered to buy the bars for $30 an ounce. When the phony buyer said he did not have enough cash to make a suitable deposit, the victim was persuaded to put up $5,500—nearly all of his savings—with a promise that he would receive 10 per cent interest and a $500 bonus.

The fake bars—actually gold painted brass—were left with the victim as security. When the con men did not return as scheduled, the victim called police.

Bennett Firm On No-Water Sales

With a few terse words, Premier W. A. C. Bennett today confirmed in Victoria that the British Columbia government has not changed its tough stand against selling water to the United States. Suggestions as to a possible policy change were made following remarks by conservation minister Ken Kiernan, who said Saturday at the Social Credit party convention in Vancouver he could foresee a time when it might be morally wrong for B.C. to refuse the United States a share of its water resources. The Premier refuted this view.

Frank Howard NDP-Skeena introduced a bill in the Commons Monday that would give Indians the right to fish for food at all times regardless of game laws. Given first reading, the bill will be debated later in the parliamentary session. Mr. Howard said Indians have a hereditary or aboriginal right to fish for food.

Crisis Again Grips Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The long-time leader of the Hudson County Democratic political machine and the mayor of Jersey City have been indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of shaking down three construction firms engaged in public works.

Named with John Kenny, 77, the county political boss, and Mayor Thomas Whelan, 48, were 10 other persons, including Hudson County Police Chief Fred Kropke, 57, and Thomas Flaherty, 42, president of the city council of Jersey City.

In an indictment made public Monday, all were accused of extortion-conspiracy in the alleged milking of $181,682 from three construction firms.

Kenny, Whelan, Flaherty and Bernard Murphy, 52, the Jersey City purchasing agent, also were indicted on charges of filing false income-tax returns.

U.S. Motorists To Pay More As Gas Companies Hike Price

NEW YORK (AP) — Wholesale gasoline price increases that are expected to affect the pocketbooks of average motorists in the United States became more widespread today.

Texaco Inc. and Phillips Petroleum Co., two major marketers, matched the seven-tenths of a cent a gallon wholesale raise initiated last Wednesday by Gulf Oil Co.-U.S. and later met by Atlantic Richfield, Skelly, and American Oil, the marketing subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

Such a jump in wholesale prices on gasoline sold to dealers normally is passed on to the consumer at about one cent a gallon.

Other major firms reported they were watching the competitive situation that also involves higher crude oil purchase prices and a Nixon administration threat of an investigation by the office of emergency preparedness.

A 25-cent-a-barrel increase in crude oil purchase prices by Gulf now has been met by Atlantic Richfield, Skelly, Continental Oil Co., and Pan American Petroleum, Indiana Standard's exploration and production subsidiary.

Texaco also increased its crude prices today but did so on a selective basis ranging from 15 to 25 cents.

Oilmen blame the price increases on greater demand for petroleum products at a time domestic explorations for new oil and gas reserves are at a 27-year low.

Modular Construction Keeping Costs Lower

By JOE DARY
Courier Staff

School District 23 (Kelowna) is constructing schools at a lower cost than conventional schools in other districts throughout the province. Three elementary schools which became operative this year, and KLO Secondary, which will open near Easter, are prime examples of the lower construction costs.

Story Of The Buckaroos Explained To Kiwanians

Guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting of the Kelowna Kiwanis Club Monday was Wallace MacCrimmon, president of the Kelowna Buckaroos Junior Hockey Club.

Mr. MacCrimmon gave a short history of the club from the days when there was only a four-team league consisting of Kelowna, Vernon, Penticton and Kamloops.

At that time he said the teams were of the same calibre and all players were drawn from local minor ranks. Attendance then was good.

When they merged the Interior league with the Coast three years ago the fans apparently wanted a better class of hockey and so players had to be imported. This, he said, brought costs of operating much higher and with travel expenses to the Coast, the clubs had to look for more sponsors. Also attendance started to drop for most clubs.

Prior to the start of this season the club was in debt and was put up for sale. A deal was made with two men from Saskatoon to buy the Buckaroos and the club was able to start the season in the black.

Still attendance fell and the club was getting worried. Mr. MacCrimmon stressed that even with imported players there are still seven local boys on the team. But unless there is another sheet of ice built in Kelowna the days of all local juniors may be gone.

He said Kelowna has the largest minor hockey association in B.C. with only one ice sheet for practice, times and games. This is not enough, he said, and the people of the community must press for the need of ice sheet.

He lauded Wayne North, the manager-coach of the team, who has set an education and hockey policy for the club. Every player of school age must attend school or they cannot play on the team. Mr. MacCrimmon said the policy is working good and the players are keeping their marks up.

A short resume of the Buckaroos Booster Club was given by booster president Terry Ross.

greater classroom flexibility will accrue since all partitions will be non-load bearing, making the facilities "more readily suitable to today's changing environment than those in the past," he adds.

The KLO plan is an enlarged one from the elementary schools.

The three elementary schools have 33,000 square feet each. KLO will have more than 68,000 square feet when completed.

Steel is used in the school's framework, floor and roof.

One and a half inches of concrete is poured over the steel floor to make it solid, with conventional roofing materials used on the roof.

Materials used in the schools are virtually fireproof and maintenance-free, which cuts down costs.

In addition, pre-fabricated materials are utilized, which reduces actual construction time and helps lower construction costs.

Rolf Grages, construction foreman for the school's general contractor, Gustavson Construction, Vernon, says the KLO is an easy job because of one main elevation.

"There are no zigs and zags and ups and downs, just one large square," he says, adding the modular structure is quicker to build than conventional buildings.

The KLO site will be ready after 40 weeks work, whereas it would take 58 weeks for a similar site if made of poured concrete.

"The basic cost per square foot for KLO is expected to be about $15," Mr. Fulker says, adding because of Kelowna's climate, air conditioning is a necessity.

"This adds about $1.75 per square foot to the cost," he says, "but still gives us less than $17 per square foot."

COULD BE $20
If poured concrete were used instead of steel, construction costs would be about $20 per square foot.

"Wood could not be used on this project because of its size," Mr. Fulker says.

"It would be more expensive if wood were used."

Modular construction in North America is relatively new.

Schools in Britain have been built by this method since the late 1950s, Mr. Fulker says, and it has come to Canada only recently.

Two other British Columbia centres are using this method, Prince George and Victoria.

At KLO, as with the three elementary schools, the library forms the school's core, with the academic wing surrounding.

Gymnasiums, music rooms and vocational wings are placed outside.

A covered walkway separates the two wings at KLO.

MOSTLY CLASSROOMS
In the academic wing, as in the vocational wing, as much space as possible is used for classrooms.

Heating and air conditioning equipment is placed on the roof.

Even electrical conduits and plumbing are placed in an enclosed area between the classroom's ceiling and the roof.

The classroom walls which are demountable can be moved if need be for greater mobility.

In the vocational wing, the four shops, automotive, woodworking, electrical drafting and power mechanics, each workshop is insulated against noise from other shops.

NOISE ABSORBED
Noise from normal classrooms is absorbed by regular wall materials used by the construction industry in new buildings.

"If a gymnasium was built at KLO right now, the school board would obtain a substantial saving," said Mr. Fulker.

The site where the gymnasium and music room are planned was prepared for the addition when the entire site was filled," he adds.

When the $1.1 million KLO project was announced, KLO became the focal point of a dispute after the provincial government announced no gymnasium would be built.

School district officials say, however, a gymnasium will be among areas built when the school is expanded.

PRESIDENT

C. W. (Bill) Gaddes is the new president of the Kelowna Gyo Club. Installed into office with Mr. Gaddes Saturday were R. G. Lennie, vice-president; Dr. R. N. Wynn-Williams, secretary; Orval Lavell, treasurer and Miles Treadgold, Ronald Gee, William Stevenson and P. L. LaRue, directors.

William Baker, retiring secretary, was presented with a gift in recognition of 18 years as secretary. Hugh Fitzpatrick, retiring president, master of ceremonies for the evening, was presented with the past president's pin by a former president Murray Joyce. Mr. and Mrs. Vic Appel, lieutenant-governor of Gyo International, Seattle, served as installing officer. Also present were D. A. Cooper, district secretary, Vancouver; presidents and their wives of Kelowna service clubs and guests from Osoyoos, Penticton, Delta, Vernon and Kamloops.

For visitors to Kelowna's Knox Mountain Park this week, the word might well be: Okay, okay, we got the message! Large signs warning that the shooting and carrying of firearms in the park is prohibited, have sprouted from the top to bottom of the highway. At the top in an area of a few hundred feet, there are nine such signs. A visitor from Saskatchewan volunteered this comment: "These signs don't help this otherwise beautiful place look like a park... more like a billboard contest. It's necessary to warn the public, but one or even two signs up here would be quite enough."

Sunday was a good day at the Kelowna golf course for Fred Williams, local clothing merchant. Playing in a foursome with James Wright, Perry Romeo and William Jardine, he scored a hole in one on the 13th hole.

Seasonal reminders have appeared to advise motorists of upcoming winter road hazards. Although most Valley residents haven't had to drive on snow yet this fall, it won't be long. Department of highways crews have been busy in recent days installing the traditional Watch for Sand Trucks and Snowplow signs.

A Kelowna woman reports "one of the funnest things I ever saw" downtown between 10:30 a.m. and noon Monday. A man was walking along the street in a bright red suit and green shirt. "I know the official Santa Claus parade is over," said the unidentified woman, "perhaps he was making a personal advance inspection of Kelowna."

Mishap Injures Three

Three people were injured and about $2,000 damage resulted from a single car accident at Belgo Road and Tensdale Road Monday at 7:15 p.m.

Involved in the mishap were Lyle Allan Dersch, Keith Rettinger, John Essery and Allan Stoppa, all of Kelowna. There was no record of any of the injured being admitted to Kelowna General Hospital and none of the four was in hospital at noon today.

About $750 damages occurred in an accident at the intersection of Bertram Street and Doyle Avenue at 1:25 p.m. Monday, involving Edward Williams, John and Katherine Sapinski, all of Kelowna, who were injured in the mishap but not admitted to Kelowna General Hospital.

An accident involving a CNR train and a vehicle driven by Mary McCormick of Kelowna, resulted in about $500 damages and no injuries. The mishap occurred at 1:20 p.m. Monday at Glenmore Drive and the CNR tracks.

About $800 damages and no injuries resulted from an accident at the intersection of Pandosy Street and Harvey Avenue Monday at 10:10 a.m. involving Joseph Leveille and Robert Moore, both of Kelowna.

Louis Bourget Rites Friday

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday from St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Rutland, for Louis Bourget, 72, of RR 1, Sexsmith Rd., Kelowna, who died Monday.

He is survived by two brothers, George and Tony, both of Vegreville, Alta.; five sisters, Angeline (Mrs. William Moore), Mount Angel, Ore.; Adele (Mrs. P. Cote), Hayward, Man.; Esther (Mrs. Morgan O'Connor), Edmonton, Alice (Mrs. Ernest Mailloux), New Westminster and Mrs. Marie Burak, San Pedro, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews, including Mrs. Roger Deleurne and Mrs. Bernard Hostyn, both of Kelowna.

Prayers and rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Thursday from Day's Chapel of Remembrance.

Rev. F. L. Flynn will officiate, with interment in St. Theresa's Catholic Cemetery.

Day's Funeral Service is in charge of arrangements.

Parking Discussed

A public meeting to discuss downtown parking will be held Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in centennial hall.

The meeting was called by the Kelowna Parking Commission and chairman Ald. S. A. Hodge said two propositions will be presented.

One calls for construction of a parkade on the Chapman parking lot on Water Street across from the fire hall.

The second calls for the desirability of acquiring additional downtown sites for off-street parking use.

Wood Rites Wednesday

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. from First United Church for Donald Scott Conley Wood, 55, of 1170 Kelowna Cres., who died Saturday.

He is survived by his wife Dorothy, one brother, Robin, of Victoria, and one sister, Frances (Mrs. Frank Hollins), of Surrey.

Rev. Robert Seales will officiate, with interment in Kelowna Cemetery.

Friends wishing to remember Mr. Wood may donate to the Students' Assistance Fund.

Day's Funeral Service is in charge of arrangements.

Judge Hears Three Cases

Noel Martin of Kelowna, was remanded to Nov. 25 on a charge of trafficking in drugs in provincial court today before Judge D. M. White. Bail was set at $1,000 surety and $1,000 cash. No plea was entered.

Remanded for a pre-sentence report to Nov. 27 was Glen Ferguson of Kelowna, who pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $50.

Howard E. Rowe of Vancouver, pleaded not guilty to a charge of operating a vehicle while having an alcohol blood count exceeding .08 per cent and was remanded to Nov. 24 for trial on $250 bail.

Skies should be mostly sunny Wednesday over the Central Okanagan, as a ridge of high pressure builds off the Coast.

Farm Worker Group Formed

Decent wages, unemployment insurance, accommodation comparable to that supplied loggers and construction workers, and in general a better life for farm workers and fruit pickers, are improvements sought by the B.C. Farm Workers Association, which was formed Sept. 2, in the Okanagan.

Spokesman Dave Couch, a 33-year-old farm worker living in Oliver, said the organization is necessary because of the refusal of all but a minority of farmers to pay decent wages or provide comfortable and sanitary living quarters.

He added the association is not a threat to growers. Establishment of a stable work force throughout the Valley will benefit everyone and "we will support growers in their bid for a fair deal if they assure us of one."

The BCFWA executive is made up of farm workers and fruit pickers. It is not affiliated with any political party, religious group or labor organizations.

"We have received advice and encouragement from the United Farm Workers, but we are not affiliated with them. We hope to achieve our aims without recourse to outside assistance," Mr. Couch said.

What the BCFWA wants from orchardists is "what every other laborer in Canada has had for years."

Specifically it is asking for $2 per hour minimum wage for all farm workers, rising to at least $2.50 for experienced and long-term employees; holiday pay based on 14 days holidays; time and a half for hourly employees working in excess of eight hours any day or 44 hours any week, as well as for work on Sundays and public holidays; equal pay for women, said transportation or a reasonable transportation allowance.

With respect to contracted and piece work, the organization would like to see the following scale adopted: apples, $3 per bin minimum; pears, $5; prunes, $4.50; cherries, six cents per pound minimum; and grapes, 25 per cent increase.

The committee on wages has not yet completed recommendations regarding piece work pay for peaches, apricots, strawberries, raspberries or potatoes, but in general is asking for a 25 per cent increase.

BCFWA is seeking unemployment insurance with stamps to be issued after one day's work or $25 earned, and measures to protect workers and their children from dangerous machinery and chemicals.

Sound clean cabins equipped with running water, sinks, and electricity and with access to showers and washrooms, are also demanded.

All farmers who provide living accommodations must be made to realize that farm workers are not animals.

We have no quarrel with the small grower or with the many growers who do provide acceptable accommodations; but people who themselves occupy $25,000 homes and drive new, expensive cars certainly can afford to provide adequate and sanitary living conditions for their workers," Mr. Couch said.

BCFWA is not a union, he explained. If the situation calls for a union later, one will be formed, "but we hope to achieve our aims without resorting to unionization."

The association is opposed to a general strike or boycott, because this action hurts everyone and brings about a situation which can rapidly get out of hand.

It supports the idea of peaceful marches and demonstrations. If these do not have the desired effect within a reasonable length of time, rotating strikes would be organized. A last resort would be a selective boycott of wholesale and retail outlets in B.C. and elsewhere.

Mr. Couch's campaign began last January when he and his wife, Lavina, picketed a B.C. Fruit Growers' Association meeting in Kelowna. He said some growers have shown an interest in improving the lot of the worker.

A few orchardists are renovating cabins and one is installing showers. Wages have gone up by 10 cents on one farm. But there is still much to be done, he added.

He mentioned other social problems among agricultural workers. They are not assimilated into the community and are not welcome in the Valley when harvest is finished.

Mr. Couch suggested the establishment of social centres as one possible solution.

Communication is also a problem among the laborers. They are itinerant and, therefore, rarely have telephones or permanent addresses. Drop-in information centres may help in communicating with and organizing the workers, he said.

Also under consideration is a newspaper or newsletter for the workers. BCFWA will welcome donations of supplies or equipment at Box 817, Oliver.

Mr. Couch said farm laborers have a lot of pride and do not want to accept welfare support that they wish to acknowledge that they receive low wages.

Independence Indian Need

VANCOUVER — "The day Indian people decide to take their destiny in their own hands, that is the day other people will listen to them," Vancouver Alderman Harry Rankin told delegates to the second annual convention of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs Monday.

"It is no use going cap-in-hand to the Indian affairs department or the government. Nobody else ever got anything by saying please sir..."

"Until you finally decide you are the indigenous people of this country, until you have your own dignity, rights, pressure groups, leadership to enforce your policies, nothing is going to come to you," Mr. Rankin told delegates attending the opening session of the week-long convention.

National Indian Brotherhood president George Manuel echoed Mr. Rankin's challenge, urging Indians to forge ahead through their own organizations instead of going cap-in-hand to the government.

"The only thing they respect is strength—people strength," he said.

About 500 chiefs and their wives are expected to attend the convention.

Attending for the Westbank Indian Band is chief Noll Derksen, who has long advocated more Indian control of band affairs.

Youngsters And Volunteers Gaining Through Boys' Club

The Kelowna Boys' Club is more than a character building organization that has, for the past 10 years, guided and channelled young lives toward constructive, worthwhile endeavors.

The group has reaped its own brand of fringe benefits for adult volunteers who donate time, talent and friendship to youthful charges in promotion of the club concepts. The basketball coach or referee might be a local social worker or bank accountant; the volleyball instructor could be a teacher by day, while a truck driver shares his specialized knowledge in proper breathing practices for weight-lifting. A parent lends a hand with archery lessons.

Through this kind of help and personal interest, many teenage boys and girls take on the confidence-building responsibilities of refereeing floor hockey or basketball games, help in a craft, teach youngsters to open a piano or patiently teach a retarded boy or girl to play cards or checkers.

For the past two years, 10 teen-age boys under 16-year-old James Vanson, have guided blind bowlers each Monday evening at White Cam sessions. And since the club's inception in 1959, hundreds of teen-agers have assisted playground programs, skating, bowling and swimming sessions at Vernon.

In addition, students of Immaculata, Kelowna Secondary, Dr. Knox and KLO high schools have made worthwhile contributions to community recreation or service programs on their own terms. Many talks have been given to high schools this year by club director Herb Sullivan.

The group currently operates under president D. M. White and a board of directors, and was initially born because of limited recreation activities at Sunnyside school and workshop. The club now has branches in Winfield and Westbank, and is open to boys and girls between seven and 18 years. Fee is $1 per year. Further information on the club's activities is available from program director Donald Beaver at 763-4002.

B.C. TEACHERS PLAN STRIKE

"If a strike is called, it would not be held until the first reading of the proposed bill," he said.

"It probably would be called between the first and second readings."

The average B.C. teachers' pension is $264 per month.

Comparing teachers' pensions for those with the highest classifications with 35 years experience, B.C. teachers receive $412 per month.

The second lowest pension is Manitoba, where he would receive $478, while in Saskatchewan, the teacher would receive $489.

Alberta offers $551 per month while Ontario gives $592. Quebec and Nova Scotia each pay $625, with New Brunswick the leader with $642.

Comparing pensions for a B.C. civil servant, B.C. Hydro employee and a federal civil servant, the B.C. teacher is still behind.

The B.C. civil servant receives $543, the B.C. Hydro employee, $463, while the federal civil servant receives $608.

As a result, the teachers have asked for amendments to the Teachers' Pension Act.

These are:

● Eliminate any difference in the benefit formula for service before and after Jan. 1, 1961.

● Allow retirement at age 60 or after 35 years service with full pension rights consisting of a retirement allowance of two per cent of the final average salary for each year of service.

● Define the final average salary as the average of the best 50 months.

● Remove the maximum countable salary limit.

● Provide an allowance of 50 per cent to the widow or dependent widower with no reduction of the allowance payable to the pensioner in his lifetime.

● Ensure the allowances are adjusted annually to combat erosion by inflation by the application of an index based upon the average weekly wage in the province.

● Provide for changes in the section dealing with reinstatement of previous service in British Columbia by repayment of refunds with interest.

● Expand the right to contributors to purchase service pension credit for teaching service outside B.C. and for war service.

● Reduce the penalties applied to pensioners who are temporarily re-employed as teachers.

● Provide for a 50 per cent employer contribution to fees for medical coverage for pensioners.

● Provide for an option of waiving the rights to a disability allowance in return for counting non-contributory service after disability in the calculation of a future retirement allowance.

● Provide for withdrawal of voluntary contributions.

His Own Worst Enemy

"In some places the trees died so quickly the leaves didn't have time to fall."

This is not a description of Ontario's diseased elms, those sad and numerous skeletons of the countryside in the east that have a lingering death, but a comment on two types of trees in Hawaii. These trees, the kola and the ohia, are unique in the world and for some mysterious reason they are dying. The end would mean the extinction of two species, the culmination of many millions of years of evolution.

So will begin another of those desperate battles to save from extinction one of Nature's masterworks. We see in our country how anxiously the whooping crane are protected from the trigger-happy, insensitive types who will shoot at anything that flies.

With the exception of the termite, man is perhaps the only creature in Nature that systematically destroys its own environment. The abundance of wildlife in natural surroundings arouses in man the desire to kill and destroy. Almost all other creatures kill only to eat, or to protect their young; man kills for the pleasure of killing.

History is filled with stories of man's brutal assaults on living creatures. The early settlers of North America savagely attacked the wildlife that was living in a balance controlled by Nature. In 1800, it was estimated that in the United States there were the fantastic total of 5,000,000,000 passenger pigeons; the country's most numerous bird species. By the end of the century not one was left in the sky although at one time incredible flocks of millions, would fly by darkening the day and filling the air with sound.

The man with the gun who shot them, and the man with the axe who chopped down the trees and brush where the pigeons nested, achieved their aim; there is not a single passenger pigeon left, not even in a zoo.

Buffalo narrowly escaped the same fate. About 1820 it was estimated there were no fewer than 10,000,000 buffalo in the U.S.—perhaps as many as 50,000,000. They were the great natural glory of the western plains. The huge herds were unique, a wonder of the world. Buffaloes were hunted and killed with a savagery never equalled in all man's assaults on his natural environment.

Yet it is not only the deliberate act with knife and gun and hook; man is poisoning nature, too; changing its balance. The organic and inorganic are brought into collision with disastrous results. It took 25 years for DDT to be seen as a menace. How many birds, bees, butterflies, fish and useful insects—and probably wild animals—were wiped out because of man's ignorance? The numbers must be incalculable.

It certainly seems that not so many birds sing, not so many bees hum as they did before this became a chemical world.

Everywhere man shows his contempt or disregard for the rest of Nature. The big game safaris on which the bold and the brave could go to Africa with a high-powered rifle and slaughter some handsome animal, are now practically things of the past. There is not quite so much chest-puffing over photographs of big tigers, lions, elephants and so on with their proud slaughterers smiling happily as there once was.

Many species are dwindling, driven to the last ditch by gunshot and chemicals. The Blue Sheep of Sikkim, the Volcano Rabbit of Mexico, the gorillas of Rio Muni; the Golden Mole of Southwest Africa; the Great Indian Rhino, and our own whooping cranes, all in peril of extinction.

NEWS ANALYSIS

New Arab Group Seen As Threat

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Egypt, the Sudan and Libya have announced their decision to form a federation. Though it will not be a federation in more than name for some time—if ever—its formation and the timing have serious implications, possibly, for the Middle East.

The first steps towards federation, steps that may take years to complete, consist of forming various consultative and coordinating committees with no real power over policy. The three members of the federation remain independent. In other words, Egypt is not repeating the mistakes she made when she formed a union with Syria and Yemen, a union that eventually broke apart.

Libya, an Arab nation, is a long and costly war in the Arabian peninsula. As matters stand now, any member of the new Federation—Egypt, Libya or the Sudan—could become involved in fighting without this bringing the other members into the conflict automatically.

Saadat some of the charismatic appeal he lacks.

But he has taken on two restive partners, the military dictators of Libya and the Sudan who have been pressing for a more militant Egyptian attitude towards Israel—both Libya and the Sudan are far enough from Suez to be safe from Israeli retaliation and can be military without risk. Both are military men, rulers, juntas of young officers who think in terms of potential greatness for the whole Arab nation. The dictators of Libya and the Sudan will be pressed by their subordinates to press Egypt towards a tougher stand towards Israel. Anwar Saadat may not be able to resist the pressure; his partners can diminish his prestige drastically by threatening to withdraw from the federation on the grounds that the president of Egypt is too craven.

Thus, the new Arab federation may prove to be a disturbing factor in its external activities. Its internal affairs are not likely to be less disturbed. The three partners are disparate. The Sudan is opposing its non-Arab Negro population which is fighting a guerrilla war. It will ask for monetary help from oil-rich Libya. Libya does not seem disposed to subsidize the Sudan, much less subsidize Egypt which has enough economic problems to exhaust Libya's wealth and still stay poor. On this question of economic sharing, the irreality of the federation will be constantly exposed. The three leaders will try to camouflage their differences by agreed belligerence against Israel.

BOOK CORNER

LONDON (CP) — Sir Alexander Fleming won the Nobel Prize and a place in history by discovering penicillin, but his fame cast into undeserved shadows the man who really proved its value and who initiated the first large-scale production in wartime Canada.

In a new book called The Birth of Penicillin, Prof. Ronald Hare, an eminent bacteriologist who was largely responsible for setting up that first penicillin plant, says if it had not been for Prof. Howard Florey it is doubtful if the drug would have been available to save thousands of lives in the Second World War.

Fleming discovered penicillin by accident in 1928 but according to his colleagues thought there was "very little future in the stuff" because of its instability and cost of production. It was not until 1940 that Prof. Florey, later Lord Florey, and an Oxford University colleague found a way of purifying and stabilizing the drug for medical use.

ORDERED TO PRODUCE
In 1942, Prof. Florey proved the value of the new drug by successfully treating a patient with a staphylococcal infection. Some months later he came to Toronto, where Hare was already working at the Connaught research laboratories, to persuade the Canadian authorities to start bulk production of penicillin, conditions being impossible in war-torn Britain.

Doubts about penicillin still prevailed, but when planning started for the D-Day invasion of Europe in the summer of 1944, Hare and two other researchers were told to begin producing at the rate of 50 million units a day—"despite the fact that we had the haziest notion how to do it."

The only suitable building with enough space was Old Knox College, a 70-year-old Toronto landmark on Spadina Avenue. There came the problem of acquiring apparatus from the all-powerful "Dictator of Penicillin" in Washington, who controlled all North American production of the drug.

MOLLIFIED BY GIN
At one stage, Hare was faced with a delicate social problem when he and his team went to Washington to seek the great man's help. At this time, University of Toronto and allied establishments such as the Connaught labs were officially dry, and representatives customarily did not drink spirits even on neutral territory.

The Canadian team invited the penicillin chief to dinner, and he asked for a dry martini. Hare debated inwardly for a moment, then ordered one for himself to be convivial.

"Despite glares of disapproval from the more hide-bound, some of the rest followed suit and we had quite a jolly party," he recalls. "I wonder how many Canadian soldiers owe their lives to the mollifying influence of gin in Washington."

The penicillin was duly produced, just 17 days before D-Day, June 6, 1944.

Later in his Toronto career, Prof. Hare watched Canada beat the world in treatment of the dreaded childhood disease diphtheria, with Dr. J. G. Fitzgerald leading the research on immunization.

Hare now is 70 and emeritus professor of bacteriology at the University of London.

WORLD NEWS
APPLE A DAY
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has ordered that at least an apple a day be given to residents of institutions operated by the state departments of social services and mental hygiene. "If everyone would eat an apple a day all would be better off," Rockefeller said. New York state is a major producer of apples.

LAWN CHILD
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The first child of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Marshallman was born on the lawn of Parkview Hospital. The parents were walking rapidly across the grass when it became apparent that the 15-year-old wife was in delivery. Marshallman rushed in and obtained a nurse, who assisted. Attendants said both the mother, Debbie, and the son were in fine condition.

BIBLE BRIEF
"Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight: that thou mightest be justified when thou speakest, and be clear when thou judgest." Psalm 51:4

A LOOK AT FUTURE CITIES

Architects Not Too Happy

MONTREAL (CP) — People must be given a hand in the planning of Canadian cities, buildings, parklands and roads. If not, 1984 could be considerably more unpleasant for city dwellers than author George Orwell ever imagined.

This is the view of a group of Canadian architects interested in preventing the social, physical and ecological disasters that men call cities.

Architects Roy Affleck, Joseph Baker and Derek Drummond, all of Montreal; Jack Long, of Calgary; Yorkshire-born Roger Kemble of Vancouver and Colin Vaughan of Toronto share common concerns about the Canadian urban environment.

Mr. Affleck said the urgent need for new and improved housing is the most apparent aspect of the urban crisis in Canadian cities.

"It would be a mistake, however, to view the urban dilemma solely in terms of housing. All aspects of the environment are involved: the pollution of air and water; the inadequacy . . . of facilities for leisure, learning and health; the traffic and parking mess; and above all, the lack of basic human qualities in much of the current urban scene."

MUST BE ALLIED
The need for basic human qualities in our cities strikes a responsive chord in Joseph Baker, 41-year-old professor of architecture at McGill University.

In the past, architects have served corporations with little concern for social values, he feels.

"But professionals must become more closely allied with the people who use buildings and not with the developers."

Prof. Baker has been involved with several citizens' groups in Montreal fighting for adequate low-cost housing and the preservation of existing low-rental areas.

He said citizens' groups are composed of "a lot of decent people getting together and pushing around the groups who have the money, power, and influence on urban development and change."

Prof. Baker intends to encourage these groups. He believes their "involvement with the changing environment" is a prerequisite to the development of viable, human urban communities.

In Calgary, Mr. Long sees change as dynamic and positive.

"Our biggest concern is what the profession is providing in the changing world. What are we doing about the real issues?"

Not enough architects understand the dynamics of change, in his view.

"When you start planning for people, you have to start with the community itself. The community has to be inspired to shape its own destiny."

Mr. Kemble, 40, who came to Canada 19 years ago, added:

"Ideally, what is needed is for every man to realize the city belongs to him and that he is responsible for its well-being. No one knows better how to design his own environment than the individual himself."

Architects can help, but "we must get away from the belief that a few specialists know best."

"Urban problems are not architectural, they are social."

True solutions to urban problems can only come when "more and more people get involved in the decision-making process."

Mr. Vaughan is critical of urban renewal schemes when they destroy areas which could be successfully restored. Older urban areas were too often ruined and replaced by high-rise buildings.

Prof. Baker feels there is still a place for "the old, the nicely worn."

The architects agree that skyscraper apartments radically alter the social quality of an area by tending to isolate and alienate its residents. High rental rates discourage occupancy by low-income groups and large families.

Consequently, what often passes as urban renewal is usually results in the violent uprooting of existing urban dwellers of the lowest socioeconomic level and their replacement by higher income groups," said Mr. Affleck.

Urban renewal projects conducted by businessmen and city planners, without the participation of citizens, usually create "new environments that are more appropriate to middle-class notions of propriety than to the life styles of the residents for whom the projects are supposedly designed."

Mr. Vaughan describes current urban renewal efforts as "nothing more than dividing up a city into nice plum pudding so politicians can pay off old debts."

Architects who share a social orientation feel that renewed urban areas should cater to a variety of age, income and ethnic groups, and that building new ghettos cut off from the surrounding city—be they for the rich or the poor—should be avoided.

Most important, a "sense of community" should be maintained and encouraged. It is a complex thing dependent on physical qualities, communication among residents and the emotional response of people to their neighborhood.

An area with a well-developed sense of community is a warm, human place. Residents choose to live there for basic emotional reasons. The best-intentioned architect still has to confront current financial and political realities in his struggle to improve and preserve the Canadian environment.

Mr. Drummond, associate professor of architecture at McGill University, said the architect is "caught in a dilemma between who is paying the shot and the tremendous effect his buildings will have on people."

The architect is still controlled by the cost of building and the group, government or corporation that is supplying the money for its construction.

The 32-year-old professor believes young architects, "who are not as politically naive as most professionals," will demand a greater role in the decision to tear things down.

"I expect that eventually all land in urban centres will come under public control so that an owner cannot destroy and rebuild at will."

"Not that I am against free enterprise, but the public is beginning to demand certain responsibilities from landowners and is beginning to re-define the rules of the game."

CLAMP DOWN

I read in your paper that the Teachers' Federation of British Columbia has gone on record protesting the ruling of the B.C. government, that all teachers supporting the views of the Quebec revolutionists, should be fired.

I read with equal indignation, how indignant the teachers got at being singled out for this drastic legislation, and I am sure that there were many readers who went along with their line of reasoning.

But what are the facts, they ask? "Why the teachers, and the teachers only, that were subjected to this law?"

Because it is the teachers and the teachers only, who are employed by the state, to instruct the young. When the authorities find that there has been revolutionary ideas propagated in the schools, and universities, and bloody murder condoned, that it was time to clamp down.

The specious argument that a teacher only present both sides of the matter is wrong. To use the reasoning of the revolutionist to justify or excuse murder, is inexcusable. Murder and sedition are not to be judged, and weighed in the classroom, but in the courts.

I am under the impression that the young militant spokesmen for the teachers are performing a disservice for the main body of teachers who put their loyalty to Canada before any encouragement to murderers.

CONCERNED.

SOFT PEDDLING?

Teachers in B.C. demand repeal of FLQ ruling," the headline in your good paper read, Oct. 27.

In past years generally, we have been able to respect persons in the teaching profession. Personally, I have known a number of teachers who all can, and do, admire for loyalty to their duties and patience and firmness with the children under their care.

As far as most of us can understand, the policy of the FLQ as followed in Quebec, by all reports, is one of anarchy, lawlessness and bloodshed—a reproach to any true-blooded Canadian.

Who can honestly support the methods such as have been eloquently spoken against since the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte and James Cross.

Are we, as a people in the Western Hemisphere soft-peddling, while criminals gain the upper hand?

Let us beware lest "God hath numbered thy days," (Dan. 5:26) be written on our walls of fame.

Can we not live and let live? We boast of great accomplishments, and we have some reason for satisfaction, as we view our progress; yet as we look around there are many reasons for alarm!

Any of us could make a list such as, "pollution of our air and water," sudden death for so many, as well as lifetime disability due to speed and carelessness on our highways—including intoxication and the use of drugs.

Why permit the free use of marijuana in Canada? Thousands are its slaves, with the craving for something stronger, which we all know leads to other sedatives and mind-confusing drugs, with heroin as a final and death-dealing blow very soon.

I believe there is no substitute for a clear conscience, a healthy mind, addit-free from all intoxicants as liquor, and all mind and body destroying drugs. Faith in an all-wise Creator and respect for the "moral law" would solve many a problem today.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. BURGESS,
Kelowna.

IN AGREEMENT

Sir: I read with interest Mr. Sid Hodge's remarks in the Courier dated Friday, Nov. 13, 1970, regarding the public apathy toward the civic elections coming up next month. I must say that I agree with him.

Last year at this time, we ran a spirited and clean campaign in which issues, not personalities were involved. To install a new mayor and aldermen. For my part, I was interested in first: stirring up some interest in the election which, prior to this time, had been done by acclamation.

Second, I was most interested in righting an injustice which had been done to a civic employee, namely Jack Brown. We were successful in both, but not so successful in the latter as future events proved, because while we were successful in having Jack Brown reinstated we were not successful in cleaning out the parks and recreation employees who subjected Mr. Brown to such injustice.

At the time of the campaign, much ado was made about a piece of airport property which had been used by a private enterprise group for the construction of a building without city authority. I thought this might be one of the first pieces of business attended to, but lo and behold, it was finally completed at the last session of council last week. 11 months later, Mr. Hodge stated according to the Courier, "most official discussions surrounding the matter took place within the confines of council acting as a committee of the whole and as such were not a debate of public record." This seems very strange and in direct contradiction to our reports last year "that no business will be conducted in back room deals."

Immediately after the elections, I resigned as chairman of the Kelowna Citizens Association because I felt our immediate objectives had been accomplished. It was, therefore, of great interest to me of council on the front page of the Courier two or three weeks ago, that this year the KCA were going to run a quiet and high calibre campaign.

I was surprised because I felt we had run a very high calibre campaign last year in which a mayor and two aldermen were elected.

The present KCA directorship are certainly running a quiet campaign this year I agree. It is so quiet that no one knows that there is going to be an election held Dec. 12, let alone who the candidates are going to be.

The directors of the KCA are so few at the present time, that they can be counted on the fingers of one hand, and their influence is about as high as the minuscule campaign they are running.

In closing, I would like to congratulate Alderman Sid Hodge for bringing this apathy to the attention of the public and hope he continues to prod this lakeland council into instituting a few of their own objectives before the next year runs out, because if he does I am sure that he could very well be our next mayor.

In the meantime, a few lame duck aldermen who haven't the intestinal fortitude to announce their intentions to run for council will probably, shortly, attempt to sneak in the back door by acclamation in a poorly advertised apathetic campaign.

Yours truly,
ALAN MCINTOSH, M.D.

TODAY in HISTORY

Vancouver Island, Hudson's Bay Co.'s last territorial possession on the Pacific, was amalgamated with the British government colony of British Columbia 104 years ago today—in 1866.

Leaving Rupert's Land still ruled outright by the company, The island had its own government since 1850, although only a few hundred white residents lived there and the legislature spent nothing on roads and bridges.

There was opposition to uniting Vancouver Island and British Columbia because both were in debt, but the prospects of joining the Canadian federation provided the necessary spur.

Lack Of Good Taste

(Chatham News)

Tiny Tim, the falsetto-voiced and long-haired American entertainer found out that to monkey around with patriotic songs is a risky business in Great Britain.

It is in most countries, come to that. In this instance he sang, probably in quite a respectful mood, that famous national tune, Land of Hope and Glory, both the music and the lyrics of which have for generations stirred the stolid Britisher.

An ex-serviceman jumped on the stage and went for Tiny Tim. The attacker was restrained but Tiny Tim left the country in a huff.

This should be a lesson to many advertisers who, in the past, have made use of such anthems to back up their patter for such things as bottled sauces, razor blades and the like.

They should remember there are still individuals and groups sufficiently concerned with the reputation of their country to take offence at such unusual stunts.

Madison Avenue has often offended in this direction and we would like to put it down to gross ignorance and lack of good taste inherent to some of the advertisement writers of the day.

Even at football games some of the cheerleaders prostrate themselves on the sidelines and salaam in the attitude of Mahomedans at prayers. This also is in poor taste as people embracing other religions would offend if their own dancing girls lined the sidelines and made the Sign of the Cross to praise some good play by their team.

There have been even Hindu gods used in commercials.

Religion is a serious business for many of us; so is patriotism.

A little more ingenuity and a few less inconsiderate ideas might help.

It is not the storms, the winds, the droughts and the rains, nor even the locusts and swarms that come on their time, for these are obedient to Nature's mysterious commands; no, none of these slaughter without pity. It is man, symbolized by a gun and a pot of chemicals. He is his own worst enemy.

C. A. Meckling Gives Talk To Rutland Kinsmen Club

RUTLAND — Clarence A. (Bud) Meckling was guest speaker at the Rutland Kinsmen's regular meeting, and spoke on the Mother's March, and the reorganization of the administration of Kin Rehab and the Society for Crippled Children.

Kin Rehab, as of Dec. 31, will have its own administration, which will cut the cost of administration substantially.

The key feature of the new arrangement is that donations to the Mother's March fund will be spent on projects and cases within the zone that the collections are made.

Final plans were presented by project chairman Mervyn Geen on the Christmas tree sale. This will open at the Shoppers Village parking lot, Rutland, on Dec. 11, from 1 to 8 p.m. on week days, and all day on the weekend.

A motion was passed that the Rutland Kinsmen Club build a play house and raffle it before Christmas. Morris Piddocke volunteered as chairman of the project.

Richard Laidlaw reported on the fall zone meeting held in Princeton on Nov. 7.

The next regular meeting will be held in the Murray Room at the Centennial Hall on Thursday, Nov. 26.

Lacombe Band In Rutland

RUTLAND — A band and choral group from the Seventh-day Adventist college near Lacombe, Alta., gave a sacred concert recently in the Rutland Adventist Church. The same evening they presented a program in the Kelowna Secondary School. Frank Kravig, of the college, was the director of the vocal numbers, accompanied by Les Mackett at the piano. Lorne Frost directed the band.

Church Honors Paul Family

RUTLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Paul and family left last week for Vernon, where they will reside. Mr. Paul has received a promotion with Crown Zellerbach and will be working at their plant in Armstrong.

On the eve of their departure the Rutland United Church held a farewell party for the family.

Mrs. Paul has been a very active member of the congregation. She was the Sunday School superintendent for a number of years, as well as participating in other church activities.

On behalf of the congregation Mrs. Melville Goss presented Mrs. Paul with a lovely cut glass plate, and expressed the regret of everyone at their departure, but wished them well in their new home. She stated that it had taken several people to fill the many tasks performed by Mrs. Paul. Court whist was played and refreshments served at the close of the evening.

Kelowna 4-H Beef Club Wins Prize, Ribbons At Kamloops

Kelowna 4-H Beef Club placed fourth in the stall competition at the provincial winter fair at Kamloops, Nov. 6 to 11 in competition with 22 clubs from the interior.

Several members also gathered a few ribbons to bring home from the four day event. Jim Stewart and Brian Klein each won fifth place awards with their steers, in their respective weight classes.

Jim Stewart and Katie Stewart also were in the finals.

The results of the beef judging competition for the young members resulted in Brian Klein placing first among the Kelowna senior members, with Ronald Rankin in second place.

In Kelowna intermediate Lynda Englund won first and Jim Stewart second with Gerald Kopetski, winning third.

Sherilyn Vipond won first among the Kelowna juniors, with Katie Stewart winning second and Mark Tower placing third.

The achievement banquet has been set for Dec. 11 at St. Michael and All Angels' Anglican parish hall.

PLANS CONCERTS
MONTREAL (CP) — Les Jeunesse Musicales of Canada, founded in 1949 to promote the careers of budding musicians and to establish music-loving audiences, plans to sponsor 620 concerts by 58 artists in 120 cities during the 1970-71 season. The first took place Oct. 9 in Shawinigan Lake, B.C., and the last is scheduled for March 3 in the Magdalen Islands. At the same time, several Canadian artists will perform in Europe as part of an exchange program with member countries.

Guide, Brownie Meeting Held In Rutland

RUTLAND — A meeting of the Rutland Guide and Brownie Mothers' Association was held recently in the South Rutland school library. Mrs. Edward Hoffman presiding. First on the agenda was the subject of leaders for the brownie packs and girl guide companies.

Several new volunteers were recruited for these positions with the result that all positions have been filled for the present.

Plans for a bake sale to be held at Shop-Easy Nov. 28, starting at 1 p.m., were discussed.

Mrs. Otto Graf, district No. 2 commissioner, again mentioned that a deputy commissioner must soon be appointed to assist her, and to replace her when her term expires.

Mrs. Graf reported that the four districts in the Kelowna area are sponsoring a joint rummage sale, to be held on Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Legion Hall, from 9 to 12 noon. The proceeds will go towards the purchase of a "brick" for the proposed Kelowna and District indoor swimming pool.

Donations may be left at the home of Mrs. Steinberg, 560 Hollydell Road, or will be picked up if donors will phone Mrs. Simoneau at 765-6112. Items must be in before Friday.

The November meeting of the guides was held in Oyama at the home of Mrs. Trewitt. There was a good attendance.

All the UNICEF money has not yet been turned in, but indications are that the final returns will be good. The Kelowna District No. 2, Rutland, Winfield and Oyama, now has 14 units, with 31 leaders and 278 guides and brownies registered.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all—results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Very Dirty Engine purposely used to provide severe test.

New F-310 in Chevron gasolines turns dirty exhaust into good clean mileage.

Now, research scientists at Chevron Research Company have achieved the most long awaited gasoline development in history! It's a new gasoline additive—Formula F-310*—that sharply reduces dirty exhaust from dirty engines. And helps toward cleaner air.

Tests conducted by Scott Research Laboratories, an independent research group, showed that Chevron gasolines with F-310 reduced unburned hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions dramatically. Clearly, this is a major step towards solving one of today's most urgent problems.

F-310 also improves mileage, because dirty exhaust is really wasted gasoline. So F-310 literally keeps good mileage from going up in smoke.

How does an engine produce dirty exhaust in the first place? As a car accumulates mileage, deposits build up. The amounts of gasoline and air fed into the engine get out of balance. This causes the engine to "run rich", wasting gasoline. As a result, excessive unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions go into the air. F-310 can correct this condition. Just six tankfuls can do the job.

Formula F-310, a patented gasoline additive, is now available throughout British Columbia in both grades of gasolines at Chevron Dealers Standard Stations displaying the F-310 sign.

Newlyweds Pledge Troth With Coupe De Marriage

When Camille Mary Pilon became the bride of Alan Raymond McLeod of Wobowden, Man., on Nov. 7, the happy couple pledged their troth from a coupe de marriage set on a pedestal of flowers at the reception which followed at the Metador.

The marriage was conducted by Rev. Terry O'Neill in immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church in a setting of chrysanthemums, carnations, shasta daisies and candles.

Mrs. J. F. Gregory, who was accompanied by Mrs. J. P. Charpentier, sang, O Perfect Love, Ave Maria, Climb Every Mountain and Let There Be Peace on Earth.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pilon of Kelowna, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alec McLeod, of Eastend, Sask.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an empire waisted gown with a full skirt of Dacron honeymoon crepe with appliqued Chantilly lace. The under skirt was fashioned of taffeta. Her four layered veil fell in graceful folds from a headdress of silk organza flowerettes surrounded by pearls. Her long train was of silk illusion.

WISTS OF TULLE

Keeping the something old-something borrowed tradition, she wore a birthstone ring; new pearl earrings, a gift of the groom; her mother's pearls, a blue garter and a silver sixpence in her shoe.

Bridal attendants were: matron-of-honor, Mrs. Barry Fletcher, Prince George; Mrs. Ronald Baker, Edmonton; Mrs. Larry McLeod, Regina and Mrs. Rick Christianson, Cache Creek, with Connie Fletcher of Prince George serving as flower girl.

The matron-of-honor and the flower girl wore purple gowns of peau de soie, with metallic bodices topping the empire waisted gowns, which fell into full skirts. The bridesmaids wore similar gowns in mauve. Wists of mauve tulle formed their headresses and they carried bouquets of pink carnations, with the exception of the flower girl who carried a basket instead.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN McLEOD

Larry McLeod of Regina served as best man and ushers were Ken Hiscok and Kenny Nabius, both of Wobowden and Barry Fletcher of Prince George.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Pilon chose a formal pant dress of royal purple silk organza over taffeta, with accordion pleats in both dress and pants.

Silver accessories and a corsage of pink roses completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother chose a blue tulle dress with black accessories contrasted with a corsage of pink roses.

GOLD CLOTH
Two floral arrangements graced the gold cloth covered table which was adorned with purple candles. The wedding cake, on a separate table, consisted of four layers which were the mainland, with a bridge to an island, where the attendants walked on a red carpet to a plane. The groom is a pilot.

Master of ceremonies was Joseph Gregory and Mrs. Gregory entertained the guests with songs portraying the bride and groom's lives. Toasts were proposed by Dennis Pilon and Larry McLeod.

The bride's going away outfit of a purple pant dress was completed with accessories of tan, with corsage of white roses. Following a honeymoon in points south the honeymooners will live at Wobowden, Man.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hurley, Prince George; Rick Christianson, Cache Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Pilon, Nokomis, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reeve, Rossland; Mrs. Hall and daughters, Vancouver; Mrs. Harris, Vancouver; Shirley and Debra Hurley, both of Prince George.

Evening ACW Buys Chairs And Tables

St. Michael and All Angels' Evening Branch of the Anglican Church Women held its monthly meeting recently with 25 members present. A prayer was said in memory of two recently deceased members, past president, Mrs. Kathline Aitkens and Mrs. Jean Milne-Jones. Their names will be added to the Anglican Church Women's book of remembrance. Monies given by relatives and friends of the deceased in lieu of flowers will be donated to the St. Michael's Memorial Fund.

A number of projects were discussed, which will keep all members busy for quite some time. The group's main source of income is catering to banquets and lunches. Some of the income also goes toward the branch's financial commitment to the church. To date the group has purchased 10 large wooden tables and 150 wooden chairs this year, which is regarded by members as tangible proof of the work of the Evening ACW.

Nov. 18 is the big day for the Anglican Church bazaar. The ladies from all groups of the church are donating time and effort to make the bazaar an enjoyable effort which will include fish pond, home cooking, games and white elephant stall. The Evening ACW will be selling their Christmas puddings and also serving the tea. Baby-sitting services will be provided.

Mrs. Thomas Melville gave a talk on the diocesan meeting held at Creston in October. As usual she gave a well informed presentation.

Lodge No. 153 and St. George's Lodge No. 41, Saturday night at the Kelowna Centennial Hall. The gala evening emceed by genial Bruce Mearns, included cards, dancing, ladies' choice, spot dances with prizes, draws and a balloon scramble. A cold plate supper wound up the happy event.

Members of the cast of Kelowna Little Theatre's The Crucible, the production crews and their friends and families, enjoyed an after-the-theatre social at the Bijou following the Saturday night performance. Discussions, visiting and dancing were mixed with refreshments to provide a happy unwinding after three nights on stage at the Kelowna Community Theatre.

On their first visit to the Okanagan are Mr. and Mrs. D. d'Agostini of Fort Francis, Ont., who are house guests with old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Swail of Kennedy Street. They have also visited with other friends, Mr. and Mrs. Orin Rosengren of Kelowna.

Back for another winter are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Haslehan of Ogema, Sask., who are making their home at Kenogon Motor Court.

Some 32 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rode, Golfview, for a surprise house warming for their new home. Games and visiting were enjoyed and a delicious potluck bean supper was served by the 'gang.'

Dr. Knox Chapter IODE Grants Student Bursary

Members of the Dr. W. J. Knox Chapter, IODE, unanimously approved a second scholarship valued at $250 at the regular meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. F. L. Fitzpatrick on Stafford Road.

Earlier in the fall the members had instructed Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, education convener, to look into this matter and accordingly, she presented an application from a student recommended by officials of the Okanagan Regional College. The meeting approved a motion to make the award as recommended.

Mrs. Chamberlain also read a letter from the principal of the chapter's adopted school at Telegraph Creek in northern British Columbia. A request for more games for the 60 students in Grades 1 to 7, was noted and Mrs. Chamberlain was instructed to include a suitable game for indoors along with the Christmas sweets usually sent to the school.

DONATE TO ONA

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. John Kropfmüller, the chapter also approved a donation of $250 to the Okanagan Neurological Association to be used for either equipment or furnishings for the new centre to be opened in the Okanagan Mission.

Mrs. Deirdre McEachern, executive director of ONA, outlined the founding and growth of the neurological association in the Valley to the members. The association opened its first treatment centre in January, 1967, in the health unit in Kelowna, with four patients. Today they handle 90 patients from all parts of the Valley, at the Kelowna, Vernon and Penticton units.

Although the free use of the health unit premises made regular treatments possible, the limitations of these borrowed quarters stimulated the search for a more permanent home for not only therapeutic treatment and counselling services, but for pre-school training classes, she said.

The donation of a private home in the Mission earlier this fall has made possible the next stage in the development of the association's neurological centre. However, in order to convert it into a centre, ramps for wheel chairs, proper lighting, other safety precautions and a high fence, are needed. So the association has appealed to the community for support in their new venture, which they hope will become a multi-discipline centre, including the mentally retarded and the hard of hearing.

Mrs. McEachern also gave members an insight into causes of various neurological disabilities, such as cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, epilepsy and others.

IODE CHANGES

Notification of various changes was read by secretary Mrs. H. N. Williams. Services at Home and Abroad will be known as Services Department and the Overseas Relief Fund is now the Canadian and Overseas Relief Fund, in order to expand work in Canada if warranted.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick reported that a packing 'bee' would be organized soon to package the many articles of knitted garments and quilts for overseas, made by members and friends. She was authorized to purchase more wool and flannellette to be made available to members wishing to take part in this project.

The Superfluity Shop, which is the only source of funds for the chapter's many projects, was discussed. Donations in response to the request, were acknowledged and appreciated.

NOMINATIONS

The nominating committee named by the president includes, Mrs. C. D. Ciley, Mrs. R. D. Knox, Mrs. D. J. Kerr and Mrs. H. N. Williams.

Mrs. Flora Simons reported that the Christmas party sponsored by the auxiliary to the David Lloyd Jones Home has been set for Dec. 16.

Mrs. G. C. Friend and her committee will look after the lunch arrangements for the last meeting this year of the White Cane Club.

The Chapter's annual Christmas party will be on Dec. 8 at the Colony. Members will be allowed to bring guests.

Tale Of Two Cities Under Martial Law

By BLANCHE HOWARD

Yesterday I went down to Montreal for the day—convenient two-hour train service makes it possible to go down in the morning, shop, and return home in the early evening—and found that this city, like Ottawa, seems to have recovered from the shocking events of the past weeks. It was difficult to see any lingering signs of the recent upheaval which we've lived through here in the east, although I did see one soldier guarding a back entrance to the CN station, and another, oddly enough, in front of a police station.

Ottawa, too, has shed its outward signs of military occupation. Most of the soldiers have disappeared from in front of the public buildings, many of the cabinet ministers have lost their personal guards, the security guards on Parliament Hill have returned to the routine, casual glance when you enter, and it is difficult to remember that only three short weeks ago an uneasiness hung over this city the like of which has not, I feel sure, been experienced before in the nation's capital.

WHAT IT WAS LIKE UNDER MARTIAL LAW

From the time of the kidnapping of Mr. Cross until the murder of Pierre Laporte, tension mounted steadily in this city. For the first time, a walk in Ottawa after dark seemed to have danger inherent in it, and during those uncertain days when we didn't know whether we were in the midst of a carefully-planned build-up of kidnappings, in the back of everyone's minds was the nagging worry about who would be next. Rumors and scare stories were rife—even the eight members' wives of our evening French class, which includes Mrs. Stanfield, couldn't help but wonder if the FLQ would consider kidnapping eight ladies as hostages, or whether they would think this was too high a price to pay for their terrorist aims.

After the invocation of the War Measures Act, soldiers sprouted overnight like mushrooms. Army trucks were crawling the streets, and all around, the military were in overwhelming evidence—guarding various apartments near us where cabinet ministers or diplomats lived, walking up and down in front of the National Defence Headquarters, which is next door to the high school which Leslie attends—and there were continual bomb scares. At the height of the tension, I walked the block to the cleaners and had to push through a great crowd on the sidewalk. "What's happening?" I asked. "Oh, we just had to evacuate the building," an office worker replied casually. "Another telephoned bomb threat."

The presence of soldiers everywhere, while they gave us a feeling of security regarding the FLQ, also made us feel apprehensive. How strict would they be? Also, the possibility of accident seemed frighteningly real when a young soldier guarding the apartment next door to us, where Mr. Benson stays, accidentally shot himself when his submachine gun became entangled in some radio equipment. Following the accident, rumor had it that the guns were always held with the safety catches off—although, like a great many of the stories, this turned out to be untrue.

Then there was the problem of the Parliament Buildings. Only on the first day after the War Measures Act was proclaimed were soldiers seen on Parliament Hill—and then because of a misunderstanding. On that first morning, however, the member from Sarnia, Bud Cullen, who likes to rise early and get his correspondence out of the way, was understandably shaken when, at 7 a.m., he found himself looking down the muzzle of a sub-machine gun. The soldier refused to take his word for it that he was really a member of parliament (MPs don't carry any identification), and after some argument—unsettling when you're at the wrong end of that kind of a weapon—the soldier was persuaded to back into the building, call a security guard to identify him, and finally to admit him. I hope any of the good citizens of Sarnia who received letters from Bud that day will be understanding if they seemed a bit disoriented. However, as we all know, the soldiers on Parliament Hill were a mistake and were removed immediately, so that throughout the crisis the buildings were guarded by only the usual unarmed security guards—the least protected place in Ottawa, it seemed.

SOLDIERS ARE PEOPLE

At first, the soldiers seemed overwhelming fierce—leaving the Basilica after the memorial service for Mr. Laporte, it was upsetting to see Mr. Diefenbaker's guard escorting the Diefenbakers with a drawn gun—a weapon which looks like a revolver with a very large muzzle—held pointing upwards beside Mr. Diefenbaker's head. It was also unpleasant, if you happened to be going in or out of the parliament buildings around 10 o'clock at night, when the sittings are finished, to have to push past a soldier at the door, who, with one of these revolvers pointing up in the air, was waiting beside a car for his cabinet minister to emerge. And it seemed especially ominous to pass school grounds where there were children of ministers or diplomats, and see armed soldiers watching them at play.

But, as time went on, we became accustomed to the soldiers and they began to look much less ominous. In the first place, their average age, I would say, was about 19. Fearsome as the words "martial law" may seem it is hard to equate them with a dripping 19-year-old standing under a tree, looking thoroughly miserable as the rain trickles off his helmet, onto his heavy-duty khaki uniform, and into the muzzle of his gun. "Does the tree help?" Bruce asked one of them as we walked past the National Defence Headquarters one night in the rain. "Not much sir," he answered mournfully. "It sure is wet."

Rockcliffe, usually a pleasant, peaceful park-like village of lovely homes, looked like a war camp. During the first days, a drive through the area brought suspicious glares from the dozens of soldiers, but as time wore on faces became familiar, residents began waving and chatting, the wives in the homes which were being guarded started making tea and coffee for them, and the soldiers, bored with standing about, took to raking up the leaves. The residents worried most, it seemed, about their lawns, which became chewed up with the constant marching back and forth, day and night.

The Hon. Jean-Luc Pepin, a minister who likes to work until about 1:30 a.m. and requires only about five hours of deep sleep, complained that the clomping of soldiers past their bedroom window all night kept him awake. On Halloween night, some youngsters braved the ban on trick-or-treating in this area. Poor soldiers—it's hard to challenge a three-foot ghost seriously. The Stanfields solved the problem by giving the bag of treats to the soldier on duty, and letting his pass them out.

THE DATING GAME

The problems of the daughter of the Hon. Bob Andras, who complains that it is very hard to say goodnight to a date with a young soldier watching, has been fairly widely publicized. But the Hon. Don Jamieson encountered a different problem—bidding goodnight to his young guard, who was leaving his shift at 5:30 p.m., he was surprised to open the door to the same young man at 8 p.m. that night—this time dressed in civilian clothes, and come to take his daughter out.

Things are quieting here with the recent signs that police are beginning to break the case. The guards have left the nearby national defence headquarters altogether, and when I asked Leslie how the kids at Lisgar Collegiate felt about no longer having to run the gamut of armed soldiers, she answered, "Oh, we all miss them. They were just young guys, and every noon we all used to stand around and talk to them." So much for military occupation in Ottawa.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID DOUILLARD (Paul Ponich Studios)

Traditional Gown Chosen By Bride

The traditional gown of peau de sole trimmed with Guipure lace was chosen by Janet Grace Gable for her afternoon wedding on Nov. 7 to David Paul Douillard in immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Gable of Kelowna and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Douillard of Stewart Road.

White and yellow mums decorated the church for the ceremony conducted by Rev. R. D. Anderson, with organist Deborah Douillard, a sister of the bridegroom, playing My Special Angel, Jean, A Time For Us. Given in marriage by her father, the bride's ensemble was completed with a crown of daisies which held her elbow length nylon net veil of four layers and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Serving as matron-of-honor for her sister was Mrs. Kurt Umarm of Kelowna and bridesmaid was Carol Douillard, also of Kelowna.

The two bridal attendants chose full length, A-line dresses featuring high collars, with ruffles and puffed sleeves completing the cut chiffon gowns. A band of rose to match their dresses formed their headresses.

Jerry Horovatin of Kelowna served as best man and ushers were Duncan Gable and Lenord Bedford, both of Kelowna.

REFLECTA OF CHURCH

The bride's mother chose a cerise dress-jacket ensemble of fortrel for her daughter's wedding. Black accessories and a corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother chose a long sleeved princess line dress of orange chiffon over taffeta, with corsage of white carnations.

The wedding cake decorated in the form of a church centered the bride's table covered with white linen. Toasts were proposed by Douglas Eber.

For travelling to Banff for a honeymoon trip the bride changed to a red fortrel dress, with accessories of navy crushed leather. A white cerise corsage added a contrasting note to the ensemble.

The newlyweds reside at Jaud Road, R. R. 3, Kelowna.

Out-of-town guests included, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Klick Langley, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Taylor, Penticton; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Garner, Laton, Calif.; Jack Stewart, Criss Creek, and Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Gobolos, Revelstoke.

Quiet Ceremony Unites Couple

A quiet double-ring ceremony in Vancouver on Nov. 13 united in marriage Pearl Andrea Stannard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stannard of Rutland and Colin Marson of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Marson of Yorkshire, England.

The bride chose a knee-length white fortrel dress with three-quarter length sleeves, accessorized with silver shoes. She wore a cultured pearl necklace, a gift from the groom and her headress of white flowers was attached to a white bow. A corsage of deep velvet red roses with silver ribbons complete her ensemble.

Matron-of-honor, Mrs. Wayne Stannard, her sister-in-law of Richmond, B.C., also chose a knee length dress of mustard yellow with white accessories completed by a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Best man was Wayne Stannard, brother of the bride of Richmond.

For a honeymoon trip to points east by car, the bride donned a navy blue dress and jacket ensemble, with matching accessories, a corsage of red roses added contrast. The newlyweds will reside at Vancouver.

Third-Placed Club Viewed As Grabber Of Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Normally, the Canadian Football League playoffs are no place for underdogs. It has been 10 years since a second-place team won the Grey Cup.

That won't happen this year either. Instead, there is the precedent-shattering possibility that a third-place club will go all the way.

The way things stand today, it isn't even a long shot.

Calgary Stampede, third in the Western Conference, need one more victory in their best-of-three series with Saskatchewan Roughriders to get into the final. Montreal Alouettes, their eastern counterparts, have to protect a 10-point lead in their total-point final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats to join them.

If both are successful, history will have been made a week in advance of the Nov. 28 Grey Cup final. No matter who wins it, No. 3 will be No. 1.

Riders A Determined Bunch

REGINA (CP) — Jack Abendschan, whose place-kicking has saved Saskatchewan Roughriders from several tight spots this season, says the Roughriders are determined to prove themselves against Calgary Stampede.

"I think we have the best team Saskatchewan has ever had," said Abendschan, who is preparing along with his teammates for Wednesday night's second game in Calgary of the Western Football Conference playoffs.

Abendschan, WFC scoring champion for the last two seasons, contributed a field goal, a single and a convert Saturday when the Roughriders lost 28-11 to the Stampede in the first game of the best-of-three final.

"We beat every team in the East," said Abendschan, who admits that the club's 14 wins and two losses in regular-season play, the team's best record, doesn't cut any ice when playoffs start.

The game Wednesday begins at 10 p.m. EST and is to be broadcast nationally by the CBC television network. If a third game is necessary, it will be played in Regina Sunday.

KICKERS WIN MORE

"Kickers are winning more games recently," said Abendschan, who contributed 24 field goals, 36 converts and eight singles to the Roughriders cause in regular-season play this year and also provided some eleven-hour theatrics.

His finest moment came in Regina's Taylor Field Sept. 18 when he booted a 41-yard field goal, his third three-pointer of the night, with just three seconds left to play in the game, providing the margin for a 23-22 victory over British Columbia Lions.

... optimistic

Abendschan, six-foot-one, 245-pound offensive guard, kicked another field goal on the last play of the game Sept. 27 in Winnipeg to give the Roughriders a 53 win over the Blue Bombers.

Abendschan, however, contributes a lot more than his kicking skill to the Roughriders. "Kicking is a secondary thing with me to my guard playing," he said.

While he has kicked some long field goals, Abendschan says the most pressure is on when the ball is closer to the goal posts.

"You're not expected to miss inside the 20. I am probably more partial to kicking between the 20 and the 45."

LUCK INVOLVED

"Any time you're outside the 40- to 45-yard line, a lot of luck enters into it. It's just like shooting a rifle, you're that much further away from the target and your accuracy is affected."

Dallas Cowboys Thrown By 38-0

DALLAS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals, supported by an unyielding defence, crushed Dallas Cowboys 38-0 Monday night in a National Football League game and became the first NFL team in 35 years to record three consecutive shutouts.

The fierce Cardinal defence smothered Dallas' once fiery offence at every turn. The win kept the Cardinals ahead of New York Giants in National Conference's Eastern Division.

Johnny Roland dashed 74 yards on a punt return for one Cardinal score and ran 10 and three yards for two others.

The other Cardinal tallies came on a 48-yard double reverse by John Gilliam, a 29-yard run by Roy Shivers, and a 31-yard field goal by Jim Bakken.

The 1953 Winnipeg Blue Bombers were the only previous third-place club to survive the rigors of an unfavorable playoff schedule and reach the final.

It took them five games to get past Saskatchewan and Edmonton Eskimos while Hamilton needed only two easy victories over Montreal to gain the eastern berth. Yet the Bombers stayed alive until the last play of the final game.

Trailing 12-6, Winnipeg quarterback Jack Jacobs brought his club to the Hamilton four-yard line. With time for one play, he tossed a perfect pass to halfback Tom Casey, two strides away from the end zone.

Defensive back Lou Kussel, covering another receiver, hurried across to hit Casey just as the ball reached him and it popped loose, preserving the Hamilton victory.

In each of the next two years, the Bombers finished third and ousted Saskatchewan in the conference semi-finals but were unable to get past Edmonton in the conference finals.

Third-place clubs won semi-finals in both conferences in 1961, the only time it had happened prior to this season, but neither Calgary Stampede nor Toronto Argonauts got any further.

ARGOS BLEW IT

For the Argos it was a heartbreaker. Leading Hamilton by 18 points after the first game of their three-point series, they lost by three touchdowns in overtime after failing to kick a tie-breaking single from the 30-yard line on the last play of the fourth quarter.

Two years later, Saskatchewan overcame even greater odds to oust Calgary in their WFC semi-final.

Trailing by 28 points after the first game, the Riders scrambled through a driving snow storm at Regina's Taylor Field to a 39-12 victory that gave them the round by a single point.

Revelstoke Wins Title

Revelstoke took the Okanagan Valley senior boys volleyball championship for the second straight year during the weekend, defeating Penticton in the final round of the eight-team tournament held at George Elliot Secondary School in Winfield.

Penticton won the first game of the final round -15-13, but the strong Revelstoke squad bounced back to take successive victories of 15-2 to capture the volleyball trophy for another year.

In the B-section, Penticton and George Elliot were tied in the standings, with Penticton placing first on points.

The first and second teams will now represent the Okanagan in the B.C. championships in April.

Pair Regain Lead For Canada In Show-Jumping Competition

TORONTO (CP) — Barbara Simpson and Moffat Dunlap demonstrated Monday night that international show-jumping competition can be fun as they won the relay stakes at the Royal Horse Show.

The win regained the lead in team standings for Canada.

And as if winning wasn't enough, the two Canadian riders came out to accept the first-place ribbon, both mounted on Australian, Miss Simpson's 11-year-old mare.

"Yeah, it was a gag," said Dunlap, the 29-year-old real estate salesman from Newmarket, Ont. "It was all in fun—we thought the crowd would enjoy it."

Kel-Bucks Drop Another

Kelowna Kel-Bucks put on another poor display in Kelowna, to suffer their fourth straight defeat in the young 1970-71 season, losing to the visiting Merritt Copper Kings 6-2 in Okanagan-Mainline Junior B action Sunday.

The Kel-Bucks, now with a 0-4 record, failed to get untracked from a hustling Merritt attack, after finishing the first period in a 1-1 tie.

The visitors took a 3-2 lead after two periods, and outlasted the unconditioned hometown club, tallying three times in the final frame.

Gord Fells opened the scoring for the Kings in the first period, but a goal by Rod Lewis tied it up less than a minute later.

Jeff Robson gave Merritt a 2-1 lead at 1:24 of the second period and Kelowna's Jim Dickson made it 2-2 at 3:13. The Kings took the lead for good at 4:27 when Archie McKinnon, taking a pass from Terry Shepherd scored to make it 3-2.

Goals in the third period by McKinnon, Gary McKenna and Brian Barrett closed out the Kings' scoring.

COACHES' VIEW

Nobody's A Pushover In Expanded NHL Now

NEW YORK (AP) — There was a time in the National Hockey League when an established club—one of the six older members of the league—could play an expansion club and almost be certain of adding a couple of points in the standings.

That time, say coaches Emile Francis of New York Rangers and John McLellan of Toronto Maple Leafs, is long gone.

"They said they wanted parity among all the teams five years after the expansion," said Francis, who, with McLellan, was interviewed Monday at the weekly luncheon of the New York Hockey Writers Association. "Well, we're in our fourth year since the expansion and parity is here."

Francis' Rangers are tied for the East Division lead with Boston Bruins and have a 9-4-1 record after 14 games. The tie and two of the losses came against teams added to the league in 1967.

"It's getting closer and closer and closer," said McLellan, whose Leafs have just eight points in the standings, the same number as Buffalo Sabres and seven less than the surprising Vancouver Canucks. Both the Sabres and Canucks are in their first NHL season.

IT'S PSYCHOLOGICAL

"It's a psychological thing, I think," said McLellan, whose team has lost all three games it has played against Vancouver's first-year team.

"You go into a game against one of the newer teams and you figure, 'Oh well, it's two points in the bank.' But that was four years ago. Now we've lost six points to Vancouver. Nobody's a pushover anymore."

When the NHL doubled in size from six to 12 teams in 1967, the new clubs were lumped in the West Division and the established teams composed the East.

With Vancouver and Buffalo added to the East this year, Chicago shifted to the West in a realignment move. So far this season the West teams—including Chicago—hold a 28-18 edge over the East—including Buffalo and Vancouver—with 11 ties.

Collier spent one hour and 45 minutes before the 23-member jury, which is charged with investigating anti-trust cases.

"I answered all their questions," Collier told reporters after the hearing. "I have nothing further to say at this time."

Fears spent one hour and 30 minutes before the jury and told reporters he was not surprised at questions asked him. Asked whether the questions related to speculation that the jury might be investigating the NFL merger with the American Football League and alleged blackballing of some players, Fears said he could not comment.

ton Bruins and have a 9-4-1 record after 14 games. The tie and two of the losses came against teams added to the league in 1967.

"It's getting closer and closer and closer," said McLellan, whose Leafs have just eight points in the standings, the same number as Buffalo Sabres and seven less than the surprising Vancouver Canucks. Both the Sabres and Canucks are in their first NHL season.

IT'S PSYCHOLOGICAL

"It's a psychological thing, I think," said McLellan, whose team has lost all three games it has played against Vancouver's first-year team.

"You go into a game against one of the newer teams and you figure, 'Oh well, it's two points in the bank.' But that was four years ago. Now we've lost six points to Vancouver. Nobody's a pushover anymore."

When the NHL doubled in size from six to 12 teams in 1967, the new clubs were lumped in the West Division and the established teams composed the East.

With Vancouver and Buffalo added to the East this year, Chicago shifted to the West in a realignment move. So far this season the West teams—including Chicago—hold a 28-18 edge over the East—including Buffalo and Vancouver—with 11 ties.

Collier spent one hour and 45 minutes before the 23-member jury, which is charged with investigating anti-trust cases.

"I answered all their questions," Collier told reporters after the hearing. "I have nothing further to say at this time."

Fears spent one hour and 30 minutes before the jury and told reporters he was not surprised at questions asked him. Asked whether the questions related to speculation that the jury might be investigating the NFL merger with the American Football League and alleged blackballing of some players, Fears said he could not comment.

ning last in the West, have won five games, all of them against East opponents. The Golden Seals were thrashed by Pittsburgh Penguins 6-1 Saturday night and then bounced back to stun the Stanley Cup champion Bruins 2-1 in Boston the next night.

Ironically, the established East has only three teams, New York, Boston and Montreal, playing better than .500 hockey. Five West teams are over the break-even mark.

CREDITS DRAFT

Francis says he believes the great equalizer has been the universal amateur draft which abolished sponsored teams and left every developing player up for grabs. It was that draft which moved youngsters like Bobby Clarke to Philadelphia, Greg Polis to Pittsburgh and Gil Perreault to Buffalo.

"Getting a team to throw in a draft pick in a deal today is like pulling teeth," says Francis, who doubles as the Rangers' general manager. "And there are kids available in that draft next summer who we know will be able to step in and play in the NHL next year."

Follow the leader, Datsun 1600

Try it. You're following a car with a list of rally wins as long as an elephant's memory. A car with the poke to put you where you want to be. Out in front. So don't just follow the leader. Drive a Datsun 1600, and let everyone else follow you.

Here's what you see from the inside:

Everything. You've got fantastic all-round visibility. Plus a list of extras that don't cost extra: Contoured bucket seats (reclining in four-door sedan and wagon). Tinted glass. 3-speed heater/defroster. Collapsible safety steering column. Headrests, harnesses and a padded dash. A solid unit body construction for extra protection. Pick a 3-speed automatic or all-synchro 4-on-the-floor.

Here's what you get on the outside:

Front disc brakes. All-independent suspension. Smart styling, in two doors, four doors or a wagon.

Here's what you see under the hood:

A 1600 cc. 96 hp 5-main-bearing overhead camshaft engine that squeezes up to 35 miles from every gallon of gas. Dual barrel carb. Alternator.

Here's where you can see it:
At any of 250 Datsun dealers across Canada. Any one of them will be happy to arrange a test-drive.

Combination Beats Frisco

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Bobby Dandridge and Lew Alcindor combined to score 61 points Monday night to pace Milwaukee Bucks to a 118-100 victory over San Francisco Warriors in National Basketball Association action.
The victory was the 10th straight for the Bucks, leaders in the Midwest Division. They have lost only one of 12 games.
Down 40-38 in the second period, the Bucks closed the gap to 55-53 at halftime. A free throw gave San Francisco a 56-53 advantage but Milwaukee then outscored the Warriors 18-3 to take the lead they never relinquished.
Alcindor finished with 31 points for the Bucks while Dandridge added 30.
High scorers for San Francisco were Nate Thurmond with 25 points and Jerry Lucas with 23.

DETROIT (AP) — Yancey (Yank) Durham is the only man alive who can belt the heavyweight champion of the world in the belly with a 12-pound ball and walk away with his teeth intact.
He also can call him a "sucker" and a "stupid fighter" and get away with it.
"He's a great guy—he just says, 'Okay, Yank, you're the boss,'" Yancey said today in explaining the rare relationship he has with Joe Frazier, the bearded monster of a man who defends his heavyweight title here Wednesday night against Bob Foster.
Technically, Yancey, 48, is Frazier's trainer, but he has become more than that.
He is the champion's doting mother hen—counselor, dietician, doctor, security guard, spokesman and pal.
FRAZIER VOLUNTEERED
They have been inseparable since Frazier walked into Yancey's 23rd PAL gym in Philadelphia as a big, gawky kid of 17 and put himself under the veteran trainer's wing.
When the champion comes up with the cold sniffles, Yank lays out his favorite home cure of brandy and coffee.

"I don't want that stuff," says Frazier, grimacing.
"Take it," orders Durham.
Frazier takes it.
Preparing for the Foster fight, Frazier ended his regular boxing workout by lying flat on the massage table and letting Yank slam a 12-pound medicine ball into his mid-section with all his might.
"That's enough," says Frazier.
"Seven more," says Yank.

Foster Feels He Has An Edge In Coming Fight With Frazier

DETROIT (AP) — Bob Foster will weigh the highest of his career when he fights Joe Frazier for the heavyweight championship. But the real gain won't show on the scales.
"It's given him a million pounds of confidence," veteran trainer Bill Gore said of Foster's added weight. "He actually thinks he's going to tip Frazier over."

"I know I'm ready for this," the light heavyweight champion said Monday after completing his training for the scheduled 15-round fight Wednesday night in Cobo Arena.

MONTREAL (CP) — Reports that Canada's National Ski Team is in imminent danger of being disbanded have been termed "exaggerated" by Keith Nesbitt, general manager of the Canadian Ski Association.

"These reports were a little too severe," said Nesbitt Monday, about quotes attributed to CSA president Scott Fennell of Toronto. "There certainly is an executive meeting of the CSA for mid-December."

Nesbitt admitted that a serious financial problem does exist for the ski team but said other methods of curtailing expenses would be implemented before such a drastic move would be considered.

"If reports from the fund drive dictate as much, we'll cut back but certainly not cut out our top priority (the Alpine team) program. The first thing to go will definitely not be the National Ski Team."

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's national hockey team will play six games against Eastern Hockey League teams in a tour of the United States next month, it was announced today.

Russians have agreed to play with professional rules familiar to EHL teams rather than the amateur rules they usually use.

Marathon Climb Near Top

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Two mountaineers were within striking distance of El Capitan's summit today after 26 days and almost 3,000 feet of climbing in a vertical world of rock and sky.

They hoped to pull over the final summit overhangs and become the first men to ascend the "Wall of the Morning Light" on the southeast face of the granite monolith towering over Yosemite Valley.

Ground co-ordinators said that even if unexpected difficulties arose the two should finish the ascent by Wednesday.

Several friends headed by trail for the top of El Capitan early today to prepare a welcome feast—fulfilling the climbers' dreams for food.

Monday, Warren Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., and Dean Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., overcame the last apparent major obstacle—the "Great Roof," a giant overhang that juts 15 feet or more straight out from the rock wall.

With Harding apparently in the lead, they climbed into a chimney above the ceiling and disappeared from the view of scores of tourists and reporters who watched with telescopes and binoculars from below.

That put them at about 2,650 feet—350 feet from the top.

The men started the climb Oct. 23, planning for a 10-day trip.

Foul weather and extremely difficult climbing extended the effort well past the previous record of 11 nights and 12 days for a continuous climb in Yosemite.

NEW MLA FACES

Another Thing Sure In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — As well as death and taxes, there's another thing certain in Alberta—the legislature will have a lot of new faces, following the next provincial election.

So far two cabinet ministers, Provincial Treasurer A. O. Aalborg and Mines Minister A. R. Patrick, have announced firm retirement. Dr. J. Donovan Ross, lands and forests minister said he would retire but now is reconsidering.

Two Social Credit MLAs have lost renomination bids, nine others have said they won't seek re-election and one did not seek renomination although he hasn't officially retired. That amounts to 15 familiar faces which may be missing from the government side of the house.

Add 10 new seats created by redistribution and at least one-third of the seats—there will be 75—in the house will have new men in them.

Standings now are Social Credit 55 and Progressive Conservative 10. While the government hasn't said when the next election will be held, Premier Strom has hinted strongly that it will be next year.

In an interview, Mr. Strom said that traditionally there is an election every four years and "I don't see any reason to change."

The last election was in 1967 when E. C. Manning, now a Senator, led Social Credit to victory. He retired in 1968 and was succeeded by Mr. Strom.

The Social Credit party has been in power in Alberta since 1935 and is the longest-ruling government in Canadian history.

Since the 1967 general election, the Progressive Conservatives have won two byelections, one in Mr. Manning's riding and one in Edson, a former Liberal seat.

They also had their ranks boosted by Clarence Copithorne, who was elected as an independent, and Bill Dickie who moved from the Liberal ranks to leave that party without representation in the house.

Members who have said they won't run again are: Roy Ellis, Ground; Jack Landeryou, Lethbridge; Lee Leavitt, Calgary Queen's Park; Ernie Lee, Dunvegan; Romeo Lamothe, Bonnyville; Chester Sayers, Camrose; Antonio Aloisio, Athabasca; Albert Stroschein, Wetaskiwin, and Ira McLaughlin, Grande Prairie.

Jack Hillman lost the nomination in Sedgewick-Coronation as did Harry Leinweber in Medicine Hat.

Nick Melnyk's riding of Willingdon-Two Hills was eliminated under redistribution to become part of Redwater-Andrew and he didn't seek renomination. He has not yet commented on his plans.

Curling Begins At Peachland

PEACHLAND — Curling at the Peachland rink began on Monday starting with the Ladies' Afternoon League, the Teen League and the Ladies' Evening League.

The men's curling began Tuesday.

The first event of the season will be a mixed bonspiel on Nov. 21 and 22. Anyone wishing to take part in this bonspiel are asked to contact Allan MacKinnon or Stuart MacMillan.

Also on the agenda is regular mixed league curling to be held on Sundays. If enough interest is shown it is scheduled to get underway on Nov. 29. If anyone is interested in this league, names can be left at the rink.

Rabbi Urges Curbs On Arabs

TORONTO (CP) — Rabbi David Monson has urged that Ottawa, using the War Measures Act, outlaw Arab groups and their supporters who subscribe to the aims of the Palestine Liberation Organization. He told the evening service at Beth Shalom Synagogue that the Arab groups should be banned because of alleged links between the PLO and the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

WORLD BRIEFS

REPORT VIOLATION

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia charged Monday that a helicopter with U.S. markings penetrated 36 miles into the country Oct. 27 and 18 miles on Nov. 1. The Czechoslovak foreign ministry handed a U.S. embassy representative a protest "against a double, arbitrary violation of our air space by helicopter with U.S. markings," Czechoslovak radio reported.

PLANE TESTED

MOSCOW (AP) — The TU-144, the Soviet entry in the race to develop a supersonic transport for commercial use, hit a speed of 1,509.7 miles an hour in a recent test flight, Tass reported Monday. That is well over twice the speed of sound. The official Soviet news agency said the plane reached an altitude of 55,841 feet.

ANNOUNCES PACT

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — Chile established trade relations with the government of North Korea Monday, Foreign Minister Colonel Pedro Almeyda announced. Almeyda said, however, the move does not mean that diplomatic relations have been established between the two countries.

WINTER HITS ITALY

ROME (Reuters) — Italians shivered Monday under the first real onslaught of winter after a night in which snow fell on high ground in many parts of the country and temperatures dropped sharply.

NLF VISITS ITALY

ROME (Reuters) — A four-man delegation from the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front arrived here Monday for two days of talks with Italian sympathizers.

SET UP RELATIONS

MADRID (Reuters) — Spain and Czechoslovakia established consular and trade relations in an exchange of notes between their ambassadors in Paris Monday, a foreign ministry spokesman said here. The move is another step in Spain's policy of gradual "opening to the East." The Franco government has already established similar relations with Romania, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria.

RANSOM BANKER

SINGAPORE (AP) — Kidnappers released a rich bank director, Tan Han Seng, 50, Monday night after his family paid $50,000 in ransom. He had been taken from his home last Thursday. The banker's doctor said he was in good shape. The kidnappers had demanded the equivalent of $266,666, but the family convinced them they could not raise that much money.

STATION PAYS UP

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Radio station WTRY offered to pay 10 cents for every political poster turned in after the election, expecting to spend $100 to $200 to "clean up politics." But the five-day campaign brought in 23,800 discarded posters. The station paid $2,380 to listeners in a 60-mile radius of Troy.

Dry Mouth Problem Makes Her Unhappy

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been troubled with "dry mouth." Since my complete hysterectomy a year and a half ago, the problem has become so bad that I can't sleep at night without sipping water every few minutes, or by morning my sticky tongue will be cracked open with several fissures. For lack of anything better I have been using a cold saline directly on my tongue so I can have some peace. — Mrs. R. C. R.

There can be several causes of dry mouth, and sometimes more than one involved in a single case, a point to keep in mind. Among the causes can be vitamin deficiencies, hormone changes, due to menopause and it is thought by some authorities, a collagen disorder which affects the fibrous and supporting tissues of the body. Obviously, but curiously sometimes overlooked, mouth-breathing can cause dryness. Certainly mouth-breathing can make situation worse even if something else is the basic cause.

I'm glad your use of medicated saline has helped some, but it doesn't sound like the pleasant method, so I'll offer some others which are helpful.

Since menopause at times causes or contributes to dry mouth, and since your trouble has been worse since your complete hysterectomy, the use of such female hormones as estrogen may help.

If there is any indication of vitamin deficiency, that can be treated.

One simple recommendation which has been helpful many times is to rinse the mouth several times a day with a mixture of syrup in warm water.

Or lemon juice in water three or four times a day may stimulate the salivary glands.

Salivagogues—medications to increase the secretion of saliva—can be tried, under your doctor's supervision. These include pilocarpine, physostigmine, and neostigmine.

Are you by any chance a mouth-breather? Or a mouth-breather mostly at night? If so the attentions of a nose-throat specialist might disclose some nasal obstruction that can be, and ought to be, removed.

Your mention of the trouble's becoming worse after your hysterectomy would give rise to the suspicion that it may have something to do with your hormone status but that would not be the whole cause.

Note to P.C.W.: Virus pneumonia is not necessarily the same as "walking pneumonia." Pneumonia can be caused by bacteria, viruses or even chemical irritants. A "walking pneumonia" is pneumonia that is not severe enough to force the patient into bed—although bed may, even so, be the best place for him until the lung condition is cleared up. Usually the victim calls it a bad chest cold.

CRIMINAL COMPENSATION
LONDON (CP) — The advisory council on the penal system submitted a report suggesting criminals should be made bankrupt by courts to pay compensation to victims. A spokesman for the council said: "If a person commits a serious crime against property or against a person, his assets should be susceptible of being tapped to the fullest extent."

Inquiry Into Effectiveness Of Quebec Police Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Solicitor-General George McNeil rejected opposition suggestions in the Commons Monday that the government establish a commission to assess police effectiveness in the Quebec terrorist kidnappings.

In answer to David MacDonald (PC—Egmont), who referred to "increasing alarm" about alleged police inefficiency, Mr. Trudeau said there is a "review under way" by the government in co-operation with the provincial and Montreal police.

But he said that did not imply criticism of past police actions. Rather, it was meant to prepare for future tasks.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) also urged that an independent inquiry into police action under the War Measures Act be set up.

Mr. McNeil said it would be inappropriate for the federal government to investigate the administration of justice, which is a provincial responsibility under the constitution.

Replying to former prime minister John Diefenbaker, Mr. McNeil said the arrest Nov. 6 of Bernard Lortie in connection with the kidnap of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte was made by Quebec and Montreal police, not the RCMP.

Police are reported to have missed three other kidnap suspects who were hiding in a closet when they arrested Lortie.

MUSICAL DRUGS
WALLINGTON, England (CP) — Thousands of youngsters are getting "hooked" on pop music, says Frank Knight, a Surrey music therapist. He found that pop not only stimulated them sexually but also stunted the formation of their characters.

"Such music over-excites and incites youngsters to behave in ways that can disorganize their personalities," he said. He has called for special research into the part pop music plays in the development of young people.

Ford Names New President
OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Roy F. Bennett, 42, a native of Winnipeg, was named president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. Monday.

Mr. Bennett, vice-president, finance, since 1965 and a director of Ford since 1966, replaces Karl E. Scott, formerly president and chief executive officer who now becomes chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Mr. Bennett obtained most of his education in Toronto, qualified as a chartered accountant in 1953 and joined Ford in 1956. He has held a number of jobs, including assistant controller, financial analysis, director of corporate planning, and general marketing manager.

William Mitchell, assistant treasurer since 1969, replaces Mr. Bennett as vice-president, finance, and treasurer. He is 41 and a native of Calgary.

The directors also elected George Mara of Toronto, president and director of William Mara Co. Ltd., as a director. Walter Walla of Chicago also becomes a director and vice-president and will be general manager of Ford of Canada's sales division.

Mr. Scott, 64 and due to retire next year, has been president and chief executive officer since 1960.

"PROFILE"
An Informative Guide To A Selected Group Of Area Businesses! Five Bridges Grocery 1475 Sutherland Ave. — 762-2434

Five Bridges Grocery, 1475 Sutherland Ave., is a family venture with a twist. It is a grocery store, operated by Mrs. Shirley Chapman, a Kelowna native, and her five daughters, ranging in age from eight to 15 years old. The store has been in operation for a number of years at the same location, and was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Hack for 10 years until Mrs. Chapman bought it. "I was born and raised in Kelowna, but lived at the Coast for 11 years," Mrs. Chapman says. "When my husband died, I decided to return home because here is where my family is."

She took control of the store July 1. "I bought the store because I wanted my children to work with me and at the same time hope they would take an interest in the store as well," she says. In addition to the regular items found in a grocery store, fresh produce and meats may be found. "We attempt to compete with the major stores," she adds. Even the annual Christmas treats, including the perennial favorite, Mandarin oranges, can be found at the store. "You can tell Christmas is around the corner," Mrs. Chapman says. The store is open seven days a week. DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—four of hearts. There are times when declarer must adopt a highly irregular method of play to bring home his contract. When such a situation arises, it will nearly always be found that declarer's improvisation had a sound and logical basis.

West led a heart, won by East with the king, and East returned a heart, which West permitted declarer to win in dummy. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds, continued with a diamond to the queen, and then played the queen of hearts!

West cashed three hearts, bringing his side to four tricks, but he now had to return either a club or a spade to one of declarer's doubleton A-Q's. So South made three trump as a result of his unusual throw-in play.

South might have made the hand with a different line of play, but against best defense he would probably have failed.

Suppose after cashing the A-Q of diamonds, he had led three more rounds of the suit, which would seem to be the natural thing to do. In such case West could make matters difficult by discarding a spade and two clubs.

Would South now be smart enough to know that West had blanked his king of spades?

Hardly likely. South would probably elect to take either a club or a spade finesse, and whichever he chose he would go down.

The heart throw-in had a much better chance to succeed. It was certainly reasonable to assume that West had no more diamonds after he had played the J-10, and it would have been wrong of South to cash three more diamonds and subject himself later on to a harrowing guess.

It may seem odd to refuse to cash three winners and instead deliberately hand the enemy three tricks, but that's the kind of play you must sometimes make in order to avoid a terribly uncomfortable guess. It pays to plan the play.

ON THE PRAIRIES

Violence 'Increases'

CALGARY (CP)—Violence will continue to increase and more leisure time "will produce severe social and political problems," predict two studies commissioned by the Human Resources Research Council of Alberta.

OIL POLICY
EDMONTON (CP)—Energy Minister J. J. Greene says radical changes in oil policy would be unwise until the intangibles of northern and eastern exploration and the question of American markets are resolved.

CURB RISING COSTS
WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba Education Minister Saul Miller says the only way to curb rising education costs without losing quality and service is by creating regional school boards. "That's the only way you're going to pool your resources, both financial and human, to provide a fair and equitable service," Mr. Miller told delegates to the Manitoba Association of School Trustees' annual meeting Monday.

Possible Budget To Deal With Winter Job Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau left open the possibility Monday that the government will introduce a budget laying down fiscal plans for dealing with unemployment this winter.

Answering Commons questions, Mr. Trudeau also said that specific measures to combat unemployment will be announced after they have been fully discussed "with the provinces concerned."

Opposition members bombarded the prime minister with questions aimed at eliciting more information on steps being prepared to reduce unemployment, referred to briefly in the House last Friday by Works Minister Arthur Laing, who was acting prime minister in the absence of Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Trudeau told New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas that government policy on increasing employment is in reality a continuation of past policy.

PLANS STATEMENT

A statement on further measures would be made as soon as possible.

On whether a budget will be brought down, Mr. Trudeau told Mr. Douglas this is in the government's "discretion." Any announcement would be made "in due course."

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked whether federal officials will confer with provincial officials on plans to fight unemployment.

Mr. Trudeau replied that meetings are taking place at various levels all the time. Federal and provincial officials would meet soon to prepare for the December meeting of finance ministers. Beyond this, there was nothing new to report.

Mr. Hees was called to order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux when Mr. Hees said it is obvious the government has no new proposals and suggested that Mr. Laing had been misleading the House last Friday.

Answering Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, Mr. Trudeau said recent moves by the Bank of Canada have put a lot more purchasing power into the hands of consumers.

Teachers Blamed

TORONTO (CP)—Jean-Louis Gagnon, Information Canada director, recently has described Canada's so-called search for identity as either complete ignorance of Canadian history or a refusal to accept the nation as is.

The head of the federal government's new information agency was speaking at a meeting of the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development. He told the educationists that they and the mass media are to blame for not adequately informing people about the essential nature of the country.

Because Canadians "have tried to re-enact British and French history here, they have in the process forgotten to build Canada."

"And since they have always seen Canada as a miniature America, they have always refused to see their country as history has shaped it."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Mar. 21 to Apr. 20 (Aries)—A proposition put to you in the forenoon will be worth consideration.

Apr. 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Friends make some high-sounding promises—but they will keep them.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Keep arrangements flexible. Some unexpected changes possible.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—A sudden trip may bring useful experience but not much profit.

July 24 to Aug. 23 (Leo)—Watch a tendency to go overboard on wild-cat schemes.

Aug. 24 to Sept. 23 (Virgo)—You can achieve a deeper understanding with your loved one now.

Sept. 24 to Oct. 23 (Libra)—You win high praise for a job well done, but keep up the good work.

Oct. 24 to Nov. 22 (Scorpio)—Give in to your adventurous mood. Something exciting will result.

Nov. 23 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)—A day to be up and doing! The more activity the better.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 20 (Capricorn)—An advantageous social contact can be firmly consolidated.

Jan. 21 to Feb. 19 (Aquarius)—Some tension during the early hours; problems solved by mid-afternoon.

Feb. 20 to Mar. 20 (Pisces)—For best results, deal with important issues personally.

Astroscopes—Another good day! Keep your most worthwhile goals in mind and pursue them with enthusiasm. If you've had a new project in mind but have hesitated about launching it, now is the time. Be sure that it's a practical one, however.

Commons Continues Debate On Grits' Public Order Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons continues debate today on the government's proposed public order bill, having rejected Monday an NDP amendment that would have limited what New Democrat and Conservative spokesmen called an unjust retroactive clause.

The Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, would replace regulations invoked under the War Measures Act, slightly limiting the government's powers of arrest and detention under the regulations.

The contested clause states that evidence that a person attended a number of meetings of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, or spoke in support of the FLQ, or communicated statements on its behalf, even before the bill goes into force, "is, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, proof that he is a member of the unlawful association."

The NDP amendment would have limited the prosecution to evidence of participation in the FLQ after Oct. 16, the day the War Measures Act was invoked and many alleged FLQ members were jailed.

The amendment was defeated 51-29, with New Democrats, Conservatives, Creditistes and one Liberal lining up against the Liberal majority. The Liberal dissident was Pierre de Bane (Montreal).

Supporters of the amendment stressed two points: that the clause was unjustly retroactive, making a person a criminal for

SAYS ONUS ON CROWN

Justice Minister John Turner said the clause simply means that evidence of actions committed in the past could be used to show that a person was at present a supporter of the FLQ and therefore liable to imprisonment.

He said the onus is still on the Crown to show beyond reasonable doubt that the person is guilty, despite the "presumptive evidence" of past actions.

NDP Deputy Leader David Lewis, who moved the amendment, called the retroactive aspect of the bill "entirely unacceptable and contrary to the basic principle of our criminal law, indeed most of our law, and contrary to any principle of civil liberties and civil rights."
